JAPAN BARGAINS FOR BRITISH NAVAL SUPPORT

BRITISH POLICY OF SECURITY

PEACEFUL EXAMPLE NOT EFFECTIVE

MR. MacDONALD STATES NATION'S ATTITUDE

HOPES FOR NAVAL PACT

While Great Britain was striving for an agreement between naval powers which would make possible the limitation of war fleets, the country would have to take steps to secure that it was in a position to defend itself in the event of attack, declared Premier MacDonald when addressing the gathering at the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall to-night.

"Our experience has proved that in the present state of the world's mind disarmament by example is not an effective way to reduce armaments or to increase international confidence," Mr. MacDonald said.

Britain's policy would be one based on common sense, he intimated, and would not be easily bent.

Replying to the toast of His Majesty's Ministers, Mr. MacDonald reviewed home and foreign affairs. He spoke with greater vigour and with markedly clearer enunciation than last year, showing his health has benefited by his trip to Canada.

The Premier emphasised the achievement of the Government in reducing unemployment by nearly a million, but said that much remained to be done. He expressed the Government's determination to solve the problem of the depressed areas, and to abolish slums and overcrowding.

PEACE POLICY.

Turning to foreign affairs, Mr. MacDonald said the Government's foreign policy continues to be inspired by the conviction of the practicality of a peace policy steadily and wisely pursued.

Saying that the Government did not waver in its support of the League of Nations, the Premier welcomed the entry of the Soviet and deplored the absence of Germany. He said the Government would not cease to impress on the Germans that they were doing themselves an injustice by remaining outside the League.

Referring to the crisis in the European situation during the past few months, Mr. MacDonald emphasised Britain's efforts on the side of peace, and gave an assurance that these services would continue as long as the Government lasted.

The Premier referred with disappointment to the results of the Disarmament Conference, and said the Government would continue not only to try to preserve what was gained, but to secure agreements in ways that would still be open even if no formal Conference was sitting.

NAVAL TREATIES.

The time had come, said Mr. MacDonald, for the reopening of the books of the Washington and London naval treaties.

"I can say nothing final about the preliminary conversations except to warn you that the newspapers on this subject are far from being inspired," he said. "Japan, the United States and ourselves all desire an agreement which will not jeopardise the safety of any of us and won't deprive us of the power of defence that we must maintain."

"I speak of three powers because we three are negotiating. But in the scope of arrangements I think of France and Italy and other naval powers as well," he went on. "An understanding between the naval powers which would protect us against useless and extravagant building and which would enable us to feel happy both in security and in defence, would be one of the most important of our time."

NAZIS' HAND IN SAAR

EDEN ACTING FOR ENGLAND

Mr. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, will represent the United Kingdom Government at the meeting of the Disarmament Bureau at Geneva on the morning of November 20 and at a special meeting of the Assembly to consider the Franco-Chaco question which is to be held the same day.

He will also attend a meeting of the Council of the League to be held on Nov. 21 when the Saar question will be under consideration.

It is not yet decided whether Sir John Simon will visit Geneva for these meetings.

The Council meeting will have before it the report published this evening by the Saar Governing Commission of activities of the German front in the Saar. The report is a long one and offers evidence which it states sufficiently established continued interference in affairs of the Saar.

The German Ambassador, Baron Von Hoersch, called at the Foreign Office this afternoon and saw the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon.

It is understood that questions connected with the holding of the Saar Plebiscite on January 13 were discussed.—British Wireless.

CAPT. MOLLISON AGAIN DELAYED

QUARREL STORY RIDICULED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(The Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1911. Received, November 10, 1934.)

London, Nov. 9. Mrs. Amy Mollison arrived back from India to-day, having travelled as far as Amsterdam from Athens as a passenger aboard a Dutch air liner on the Singapore-Sudan service.

Capt. James Mollison is piloting the Comet plane, in which they had hoped to set a record for the flight from England to Australia, back to Croydon.

Capt. Mollison was held up at Lyons and has again been forced to delay at Brussels. Bad weather is interrupting his flight. He is expected at Croydon to-morrow, however.

Mrs. Mollison denied that they had returned home separately owing to a quarrel. She explained that the idea of separate travel originated in a joke, in which "Jim" was to give the air liner a start and race her to Marseilles.

Mrs. Mollison spoke of the kindnesses she and her husband had received at their various stopping places during their abortive attempt to reach Australia. She had borrowed clothes from the Royal Air Force stations on the way home, she said.—Reuter Special.

SECRET TALKS IN LONDON

COMPROMISE ON FLEET STRENGTH DECLINED

UNITED STATES NOT ASKED TO COMMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, Nov. 9.

The impression is rapidly gaining ground that parallel to the naval negotiations here there is an intense and secret activity on the Anglo-Japanese economic and political fronts. It is believed that the Japanese are bidding, and naming a high price, for British support for their naval equality demand.

According to usually reliable sources, the Foreign Office and the Board of Trade are considering a Japanese offer to Great Britain of concessions in Manchukuo. It is believed these concessions have to do with the proposed oil monopoly in Manchukuo, and the Japanese Government's move to control the oil trade of Japan.

Japan's reported efforts to win British favour for her naval ambitions by means of commercial overtures, are believed, however, to extend beyond oil trade concessions. It is possible that Japan will offer to restrain competition against Great Britain in the textile field.—United Press.

THE OIL ISSUE.

London, Nov. 9.

The reply of the Japanese Government to the recent representations at Tokyo of the United Kingdom Government, regarding certain aspects of the new petroleum laws in Japan, has been forwarded to the Foreign Office, where it is being carefully studied.

British oil companies whose large interests in the Japanese trade are liable to be adversely affected by the new law have been informed of the position.

Close contact has throughout been maintained with the United States and Netherlands Governments, which, on behalf of their nationals, whose extensive interests are similarly menaced, have also made representations at Tokyo.—British Wireless.

FRIENDLY GESTURE.

London, Nov. 9.

A friendly gesture is expected from Japan at the beginning of next week when Admiral Yamamoto, chief of the Japanese naval experts' delegation, replied to Great Britain's offer of a compromise naval plan. But the plan will be refused.

Admiral Yamamoto, however, will not make his rejoinder to the British offer until he has received full instructions from his Government. But it is expected that he will express the appreciation of the Japanese Government to the British suggestion for bringing naval parity to Japan.

Japan will refuse to accept the British scheme, but in refusing she will express her gratification at the British recognition of her naval experts' arguments. The fact is that Japan takes exception to the British suggestion of "qualitative and quantitative adjustment" of categories of capital and auxiliary ships. She quarrels with the scheme which suggests that all nations should communicate to other powers their maximum naval needs.

DIFFICULT QUESTION.

Although Japan feels that the British suggestions are unsatisfactory, the Government will avoid the embarrassment which a negative reply would involve and will substitute a question for an answer, asking: "How are a nation's naval needs to be determined?"

Meanwhile the United States naval parity delegates are marking time. They are silently waiting while the Japanese and British negotiators complete their discussions. The Americans are kept informed of the developments, but their opinions have not yet been sought. It is thought in some quarters that the United States will have a compromise plan to offer to Japan.—Reuter.

NEW COMMODORE FOR HONGKONG

CAPTAIN SEDGWICK APPOINTED

ARRIVING ON APRIL 17

DISTINGUISHED CAREER

London, Nov. 9.

Captain C. G. Sedgwick, who until recently had been in command of H.M.S. Berwick, one of the County Class cruisers attached to the China Station, has been appointed to H.M.S. Tamar as Commodore-in-Charge of Naval Establishments in succession to Commodore Frank Elliott O.B.E. The appointment will be effective as from March 2, and Captain Sedgwick will arrive in the Colony to take over the duties as Commodore about April 17 next.—Reuter.

Captain C. G. Sedgwick has been in command of the Berwick for just over two years in the Far East. He was succeeded when the ship recommissioned by Captain E. C. O. Thomson, D.S.O., hitherto in command of the Sir Vincent boys' training establishment.

Captain Sedgwick recently completed 32 years at sea, as he joined the battleship London as midshipman in June, 1902. He specialised in gunnery in 1910 and on completing his course was retained for the staff of Devonport gunnery school. In 1912-14 he was gunnery officer of the cruiser Liverpool. During the War he served afloat in the battleship Magnificent, the light cruiser Royalist, and the cruiser Courageous, in which for a short time he was the staff of the late Vice-Admiral Sir Trevelyan Napier. He was afterwards in the Tientsin, Nov. 9.

A sensational crime was committed at the Kuomin Hotel this evening when an unknown person rushed into room No. 45 and opened fire on four persons, who were playing mah-jongg there.

The wounded were subsequently identified as General Chi Hung-chang and General Yin Ying-tai, noted ex-Kuomintang generals under General Feng Yu-shiang. The dead man was not identified. The assassin managed to escape.—Central News.

GOERDELER HUNTING HOARDERS

SEEKING CONTROL OF PRICES

EMERGENCY MEASURES

(Special to "Telegraph")

(The Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1911. Received, November 10, 1934.)

London, Nov. 9.

"Wear your shirts down to the last thread," urged Germany's new Price Dictator, Dr. Goerdeler, the former Burgomaster of Leipzig, when he made his first speech since his appointment to-day.

"Substitutes of to-day may be the fashions of to-morrow," he declared.

"We must realise we are a poor nation and cannot buy much," he added, appealing to housewives not to distrust substitute materials.

Dr. Goerdeler's first task will be to inquire into the question of supply, the amount of food stocks and clothing in private hands. Germany is fearing a famine this winter—and it is Dr. Goerdeler's duty to hunt out hoarders.

No new food prices, or clothing prices either, will be fixed without his approval. He will oppose all attempts by industries to control prices.

Germany, he reveals, has one year's supply of coffee and tobacco and is not importing very much more.—Reuter Special.

ECONOMIC STRUGGLE

FLANDIN CABINET'S FIRST TASK

Paris, Nov. 9.

The Flandin Government decided, at its first Cabinet meeting to-day, that its primordial task will be to wage war against the economic crisis.

The Cabinet appointed a sub-committee which is to draft economic legislation to be introduced, and which will include fresh and stringent limitation of immigration of foreign labour.

The principle laid down by M. Doumergue, that private parliamentary ought not to be able to propose an increase in budgetary expenditure, was also adopted by the Cabinet.

The Cabinet finds favour in both Houses, where it is assured of a large majority.—Reuter.

BANK SITE FATALITY

COOLIE BURIED BY CEMENT

A fatal mishap resulting in the death of a coolie occurred on the new Hongkong & Shanghai Bank site shortly after midnight.

The coolie, Kan Tong, was one of a number on a night shift, employed in conveying cement to the concrete mixer. In taking a bag from the stack, he displaced a number of others, and as these fell, he was caught under a regular avalanche and crushed to death.

Some 20 bags had to be removed before rescue workers could reach his body.

USELESS PRECAUTION?

SAFETY MEASURES ON HIGHWAYS

London, Nov. 9.

In efficacy of pedestrian crossings, of which 6,000 have been laid down in London streets, as a means of reducing the number of accidents, is called in question by a committee representing all classes of road users which was set up last year to advise the Minister.

Crossings are marked on roads by sunken steel studs and their positions are indicated to motorists by "beacons" erected on the pavement. The committee is understood to have recommended suspension of the plan pending an inquiry. The recommendation is under consideration at the Ministry of Transport.—British Wireless.

Joan Crawford tells the Secret of her Beauty

You may not be favoured with a charming nose like Joan Crawford's. You may not have her eyes. But you've got something. Everyone is born with a certain accented feature and it's by making the most of that you become attractive and distinctive.

Joan doesn't admire her wide shoulders but she has learnt that by emphasising their width, her body assumes more graceful proportions; furthermore, in order to hide her freckles she applies foundation cream very thickly.

The secret of progress is change and Joan has changed a lot since those days in 1925 when Hollywood first knew her. She has been a blonde, a golden redhead and a brunette. From a chubby, round-eyed ingenue she has turned into a slender, dazzling beauty. So you girls of 18 or twenty need not worry over "baby fat" chubbiness. Cut down on your sweets and need not worry over "baby fat" chubbiness. Cut down on your sweets and need not worry over "baby fat" chubbiness. Cut down on your sweets and need not worry over "baby fat" chubbiness.

This is the secret of Joan's unique fascination. Her eyes were once merely a pretty blue. To-day, they are large, mysterious, speaking eyes—Joan has made them the focal point of her face. First, the whites are remarkably clear which comes from just three things—good health, enough sleep and no hard rubbing. Next Joan cleanses them twice daily in a mild boric acid solution to make them sparkle, and to give them depth she uses her correctly shaded eye shadow.

Of late she's been delicately pencilling her eyebrows in their natural arch. No more angles. That arch and the backward sweep of her hair off her forehead lend a serenity that is in impressive contrast to the intensity of her eyes and the drama of her mouth.

It is that which has given Joan a new glamour.

"My career," Joan said to me once, "has taught me that correct make-up is one of the most important factors in a woman's life story. I've learned that by a periodic altering of the method of make-up you can change your whole appearance. The chief thing to remember is to use reliable cosmetics and those that are natural to you."

Joan doesn't depend on her creams alone to keep her skin clear and smooth and clean and supple. She keeps her blood in active circulation by dancing every day. Not by going places, and you don't have to be a real dancer. But by turning on the Victrola or the radio, and in the privacy of your own room leaving yourself go and doing whatever steps the music may suggest.

AUSTRIA GOES ANTI-JEWISH

BUT "HEADS WILL NOT ROLL"

DISCRIMINATORY LEGISLATION

Vienna, Nov. 2. Austria is on the threshold of an intensive anti-Jewish campaign, it would appear from all signs. The movement is understood to have the tacit approval of the Schuschnigg Government. Leaders, however, say it will not assume the proportions of the Jewish persecution in Germany.

"Heads will not roll," they promise.

Instead of bloodshed and violence they intend to discourage Jews from remaining in Austria by discriminatory legislation. One of the first steps in this direction was taken recently when the Government quietly decreed that wherever possible in the future all Catholic and non-Catholic children must be segregated in Austrian primary and secondary schools.

In which category Protestant children will go is not yet certain, but it is believed they will be classed as "non-Catholic" and therefore grouped with Jewish children.

This measure came as a surprise to many Viennese and brought angry protests from many parents. For many Jewish parents, it was exceedingly disquieting.

To Jewish leaders it was a forecast of further anti-Jewish measures which they have seen coming. To Nazi sympathizers the decree was gratifying. To Catholics, for another reason, it also was welcome.

THOUSANDS AFFECTED.

This new measure affects thousands of children. Vienna has a large percentage of Jews. Unofficial figures place the Jews at about 20 per cent. of the total population of Vienna of which about 15 per cent. are orthodox. The total percentage of Jews throughout Austria, however, will not average more than five per cent. it is said.

In some schools in Vienna, however, the percentage of Jewish children is as high as 70 per cent. In these schools if Jews and Catholics are separated, the Catholic classes will become the minority.

The United Press correspondent talked to one professor in a secondary school who said he did not believe the new measure would ever go into effect.

MANY DIFFICULTIES.

"There are too many difficulties in the way," he said. "It will require more money and the budget will not stand it. In some of my classes, for instance, I have seventy to eighty per cent. Jewish children. To make two classes, one for Catholics and another for non-Catholics, seems to me impossible."

Observers consider it very significant that a few days after the announcement of the new school measure, the weekly organ of Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg's semi-military formation, the Catholic Storm Troopers, carried a flaming article about Austria's new anti-Semitism.

This article, which could hardly have been printed without the tacit consent of the Chancellor, outlined the Storm Troopers' attitude toward the Jews.

"Our anti-Semitism is not the brutal anti-Semitism of the Nazis," it said. "The Catholic Storm Troopers demand not more but better anti-Semitism—namely more definite and purposeful anti-Semitism. A better terminology would be 'the negation of the evil spirit of Jewish money-bag domination.'"

The editorial further said Jews should consider themselves as a distinct nation and should be dealt with as a minority when they are present in other countries. The article particularly attacks Jews who abandoned their religion,

10,000 WORKERS WANT RAISE

ARSENAL STAFF'S DEMAND

Ten thousand employees at Woolwich Arsenal are to demand increased wages from the War Office. Two thousand engineers are asking for an immediate increase of 10s. a week.

The national executive of the Amalgamated Engineering Union met in London recently to decide whether the claims of the Arsenal engineers shall be placed before the War Office at once.

The engineers' demand amounts to an increase of 2d. an hour and it is being put forward in this way as the general agreement which the engineering employers does not cover the Arsenal workers.

but maintained racial characteristics.

Old residents of Vienna say that anti-Semitism is deep seated in Vienna and Austria. Before the War it was rampant but died down somewhat during the war. Since the War the feeling against the Jews, many of whom controlled Vienna's chief banks and industries, was latent, but was not expressed in a virulent form because of the turn Hitler gave his anti-Semitism in Germany.

Many observers see in the revival of anti-Jewish sentiment in Austria something which will increase rather than decrease. The powerful Heimwehr is strongly Fascist and anti-Jewish, although there are many Jews in its ranks.

Many explain the recent school decrees as the Government's desire to appease the moderate Nazis and split them into two groups—United Press.

BRITISH AIR AMBULANCE

EXPERIMENTS
AT CROYDON

NEW FLYING HOSPITALS

The first serious attempt in England to develop an air ambulance service took place at Croydon recently.

It was carried out by the Surrey Air-Escort Detachment of the Red Cross Society, formed by sanction of the Air Ministry, and was supervised by Colonel E. M. Cowell, County Director, Surrey Branch.

The following officers travelled in one of the machines, or watched from the ground: Major-General P. H. Henderson, Director of Hygiene, War Office; Lieutenant-General J. A. Hartigan, Director-General, Air Medical Service; Lieutenant-Colonel W. H. A. de La Pryme, Secretary, V.A.D. Council, and officers responsible to War Office for all V.A.D. detachments; Major G. B. Hadden, R.A.M.C.

A 38-seater air liner (the Hercules) and a Monospar machine, fitted with special stretcher platform and with room for one attendant, was used for the experiment. The latter was piloted by Flight Lieutenant H. M. Schofield, whose property it is, and who won the King's Cup in it this year.

A temporary hospital was constructed in No. 3 hangar. The "stretcher cases" were secured to the stretchers with a special cover fastened by three straps, which has been developed for the purpose. This cover permits the patient to be carried in any position in comfort and without movement.

TREATMENT IN FLIGHT.

A "walking case" (broken arm) and a party of V.A.D. nurses and a doctor entered the larger machine, which then took off and flew to Heston. While in the air the patients were rebanded, their pulse-rate and temperature were taken, and they were given tea. After reaching Heston the party returned by a different route to Croydon, being in the air about half-an-hour.

All the V.A.D. nurses on the trip, Colonel Cowell said, have obtained or are in process of obtaining, air escort certificates. These are granted after ten hours of nursing duty in the air.

Machines of the Hercules type are capable of being fitted with fourteen army-pattern stretchers, and, in addition, a medical officer, four to six orderlies, and stores can be carried.

The Monospar machine, which carries a pilot, medical officer, and two stretcher cases, and will take off in 84 yards, is very suitable. The effects of height on wounded have been studied and it is found that it is safe to transport cases of wounds of the surface or limbs, where haemorrhage has been arrested, but that the transport of wounds of the abdomen, chest or head should only be taken after careful consideration.

In case of war, forward landing grounds will be organised as Air Collecting Stations. They will be in wireless communication with the base from which the aeroplanes are coming. No site nearer the front than six miles can be thought of. This is in the area of Corps Headquarters.

At the right is a replica of China's famous old highway—the road from Peking to Western Hills, paved about 1708 A.D. The scene is part of "The Roads of the World" Exhibit at the Ford Exposition, Century of Progress Fair at Chicago.

ODD CUSTOMS SEEN IN HOUSE OF ROTHSCHILD

The film, "The House of Rothschild," has caused a considerable amount of curiosity regarding the meaning and significance of the Jewish customs depicted in that film.

To those who have no knowledge of Jewish religious observances many of the minor incidents in the film may seem quite unintelligible.

The opening "shots" depicting a Jewish family in the Frankfort ghetto are accompanied by the chanting of a choir. This chant consists of an extract from the Synagogue service, which is sung in Hebrew by the "reader" or preacher when the scrolls of the Law, from which the scriptural passages for the week are read, are being deposited in the Ark. These scrolls are written by hand on parchment rolls and contain the five Books of Moses. The passage sung in the film begins with the words, "For I have given you good doctrine; forsake ye not My Law," and concludes, "Its ways are ways of pleasantness and all its paths are peace. Cause us to turn unto Thee, O Lord, and we shall be turned; renew our days as of old." There is no connection between this hymn and the actions in the film to which it forms a background. The only reason for its insertion seems to have been the creation of a general Jewish atmosphere harmonising with the setting.

Immediately after the conclusion of this piece of synagogue music the invisible choir can be heard to sing another Jewish tune, which is completely out of place in the circumstances. This is a modern Jewish song, the burden of which is, "The Lord will rebuild Galilee," and which is frequently sung by Zionist pioneers in Palestine to-day. The song is a comparatively modern one, and certainly never could have been sung in a Frankfort ghetto in the 18th century. Possibly it comes under the heading of "historical inaccuracies" referred to at the commencement of the film.

The peculiar oblong object attached to the right doorknob of the Rothschilds' Frankfort house, and which was reverently kissed by every member of the family on passing, deserves some comment. It consists of a hollow tube in which is folded a small parchment square, containing a handwritten engrossment in Hebrew of six verses from the sixth chapter of Deuteronomy, which commences with the words, "Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one." These "mezuzas," as they are called, are still attached to the right-hand doorposts of all Jewish houses, and serve as a reminder to the occupants of the cardinal tenet of their faith. They can be observed on many Jewish houses throughout the world.

Nathan Rothschild's habit of persistently forgetting to remove his hat when entering a house was not due to any inherent lack of manners on his part. From time immemorial it has been a Jewish custom to wear a hat or some kind of headcovering as a sign of respect. For this reason hats must never be removed in the Synagogue, and whenever a Jew recites a prayer or enters a house of worship he dons his hat.

In many orthodox Jewish households to-day it is regarded as a sign of discourtesy if a Jewish visitor removes his hat on entering. Being brought up in an ultra-orthodox household it is not surprising that Nathan Rothschild's instinctive impulse should have been to retain his hat when entering a private house or public building.

LIGHT RAY GUN

EUROPEAN NATIONS EAGER TO BUY SECRET

Paris, Nov. 9.

The rivalry of nations to buy the secret of the light-ray gun, that smites aviators with a luminous drunkenness and causes them to crash to their death was revealed by one of the inventors of this fantastic weapon in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

"This invention is no longer in the laboratory stage," declares M.
Edmond de Christmas, a French engineer. "Our experiments with small pistol-like models squirting rays of reduced intensity have been successful. The French military authorities are helping us to expand this principle on a larger scale and are lending us special equipment at Cherbourg, Toulon and Erest.

"Although foreign representatives have been negotiating with us,
we will not sell without the authorisation of the French Government."

M. Christmas said that he and his brother, Valdemar de Christmas, former war pilot, and an Austrian engineer named Ernst Heilhaus have finally perfected the invention after two years of experiments.

Does Not Kill.

"The light-ray does not kill," he continued. "It merely strickens, momentarily petrifies. Sometimes the person shot by the luminous ray feels as though he is drunk with whisky. It makes aviators lose their sense of direction."

"The flash is generated from a metal that can be obtained in both American and Germany. It produces a light more powerful, many times more powerful than magnesium. This flash can be prolonged to last from eight to twelve seconds.
Longer periods are not practical because the tremendous heat would burn up the barrel of the shooting machine."

Asked if there was any way to combat this seemingly omnipotent ray, M. Christmas smiling replied,
"Ah, oui, if you wear absolutely black glasses. But then you can't see, so how could you drop bombs?"

Confirming reports that his experiments once interrupted a village
dance, he said, "It is quite true.
We were trying out one of the pistol-like models in the country.
The ray accidentally flashed into a nearby field where villagers were in the midst of a waltz. Some of the couples fell to the ground while others suddenly became rigid as if they had been hypnotised. It was some minutes before the astonished merry-makers could continue their dancing."

"Incidentally, I caught a ray of reduced intensity in the face myself once. It made me groggy, as if I had been drinking."

Regarding peace-time uses of the weapon, the inventor said that it would certainly aid police in catching fleeing malfactors, could be used to illuminate athletic fields
at night and could even be utilised on life-preservers to enable people about in the water to signal their whereabouts in the darkness.—

REPUBLICANS MUST REBUILD OR DIE

SENATOR W. E. BORAH'S GLOOMY PROPHECY

Baltimore, Nov. 9.

One of the surprise Republican gains in the gubernatorial elections has occurred in Maryland, where the incumbent Democratic Governor sustained a last minute defeat.

Until yesterday Governor Albert
C. Ritchie, who has held the post for the past fifteen years, had a comfortable majority.

Votes from outlying districts,
however, invariably favoured the Republican contender, Harry W.
Nixon, a well-known Baltimore lawyer and Republican delegate to State conventions, and early this morning Governor Ritchie was forced to concede victory to his opponent.

The Democrats are partially compensated in Maryland by the fact that they have wrested the Senate seat from the Republicans.—Reuter.

"Political Cowardice"

Chicago, Nov. 9.

Senator William E. Borah, the stormy petrel of the Senate, who occupies one of the safest Republican seats and does not have to seek re-election until 1937, is, nevertheless, fearful for the future of the Republican Party.

The famous Idaho politician, whose rooted Anglophobia has made him internationally famous, said today that either the Republicans must rebuild or die of "sheer polit-tical cowardice."

He demanded a new liberal leader for the Party, and suggests either Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, whose re-election in Michigan was one of the few real Republican victories, or Senator Charles M.
McNary, who has represented the Republicans in the Senate continuously since 1917.—United Press.

AUSTRIAN THRONE

EISENSTADT INCIDENT ANNOYS PRESIDENT

Vienna, Nov. 9. President Wilhelm Miklas and Archduke Eugene, uncle of Archduke Otto, have had a "falling out," it is unofficially rumoured in Vienna.

Monarchists and members of the Government deny it, but nevertheless there are persistent reports that President Miklas is not very pleased with the Archduke's role at a recent royalist ceremony at Eisenstadt, capital of Burgenland.

Officially representing Otto, whom he termed "The Kaiser," Archduke Eugene recently went to Eisenstadt to receive a formal document making Otto an honorary citizen of the town.

He was given a royal reception. He was asked to review a company of Federal Army soldiers drawn up on the town square. He did, saluting them in the name of our Kaiser Otto.

This remark is said to have displeased President Miklas immensely. As head of the Austria Government he is said to have felt this remark and Eugene's action were encroachments upon his authority.

The authorities of Eisenstadt, it is further said, have since been politely reprimanded for the liberties they took in organising the monarchist rally in their village. Behind this little incident, however, is more than appears on the surface.

Archduke Eugene often has been mentioned as the next president of Austria as another large step toward placing Otto on the throne. President Miklas, however, has the job until October 9, 1935. It may be, rumour says, that a certain amount of jealousy inspires the Eisenstadt incident, as it is called.—United Press.

CHEKIANG LOAN

Legislative Yuan Approves Of $20,000,000 Issue

Nanking, Nov. 9. The Legislative Yuan to-day approved a suggested public loan to the amount of $20,000,000 to be floated by Chekiang Province for the economic development and improvement of its finances.

The loan is to be secured on certain provincial revenue sources and its proceeds will be devoted mainly to conservancy work, highway building, other construction purposes and the readjustment of the old debts.—Central News Agency.

RECOGNITION OF MANCHUKUO

BRITISH AUTHORITY URGES ACTION

London, Nov. 9. Professor H. A. Smith, in a letter to The Times, claims that Britain is at her entire liberty to determine the question of the recognition of Manchukuo in accordance with her own judgment.

The difficulty in the case of Manchukuo arises by the fact that the League of Nations hastily passed its ill-considered resolution of non-recognition, the writer points out.

Are we bound for ever to pretend that Manchukuo does not exist, thereby throwing away all chances of commercial intercourse under favourable terms? Professor Smith asks.

Lord Lytton, replying to the letter, reminds Professor Smith that the difficulty was not created by the Geneva resolution but by the events of 1931 and 1932, which detached the three provinces from China, to which they legally and unquestionably belonged.

It is obvious that no country which accepted the particular course of Geneva is justified unilaterally from departing from it.

"I am glad to note that this is the view accepted by Sir John Simon," the author of the League's Sino-Japanese report concluded.—Reuter.

Oil Monopoly

London, Nov. 9. The substance of the Japanese reply to the British representations concerning the Japanese oil policy in Manchukuo has been communicated to the British oil companies.

The Foreign Office, in conjunction with the Board of Trade, is considering the next step in the matter.

Consultations with the United States and Holland about the matter are proceeding mainly through the countries' diplomatic representatives in Tokyo.—Reuter.

LANDLORD'S RADIO NOT AGAINST LAW

LONG STRUGGLE IN COURTS

Mr. Thomas William Badger, licensee of Mill Houses Hotel, Abbeydale Road, Sheffield, bought an expensive wireless set and installed it on his staircase. So that he and his family and staff should hear the music while they were attending to customers, he opened the door leading from the staircase to the bar.

Then he was summoned before the Sheffield Justices under the Public Health (Amendment) Act, 1890, for "keeping his licensed premises for the purpose of music without having a Justices' licence therefor."

The Justices found him guilty of the offence, but on appeal the Recorder of Sheffield reversed that decision.

There was a further sequel when the Chief-Constable of Sheffield appealed to Lord Hewart and Justices Avory and Du Parcq, in a King's Bench Divisional Court, against the Recorder's decision.

Mr. Paley Scott, K.C., for the Chief-Constable, told the Court that as the door from the staircase was always open, customers in the house could plainly hear music that was broadcast. Police officers who were in the house listened to it, and it was urged that music for the public was provided by Mr. Badger.

Counsel said evidence was that the wireless was heard every night, and music was preferred. That amounted to "keeping the house for music."

"Whenever I turn on a wireless set, the noise which it emits is neither music nor entertainment," confessed Mr. Paley Scott, amid laughter. "That is probably due to my lack of skill," he added.

Lord Hewart mentioned that before there were wireless sets one saw music boxes in public houses, and asked—Was there any evidence as to the influence of music on thirst?

Mr. Paley Scott—The landlord said his takings had not increased, and the statement was not challenged.

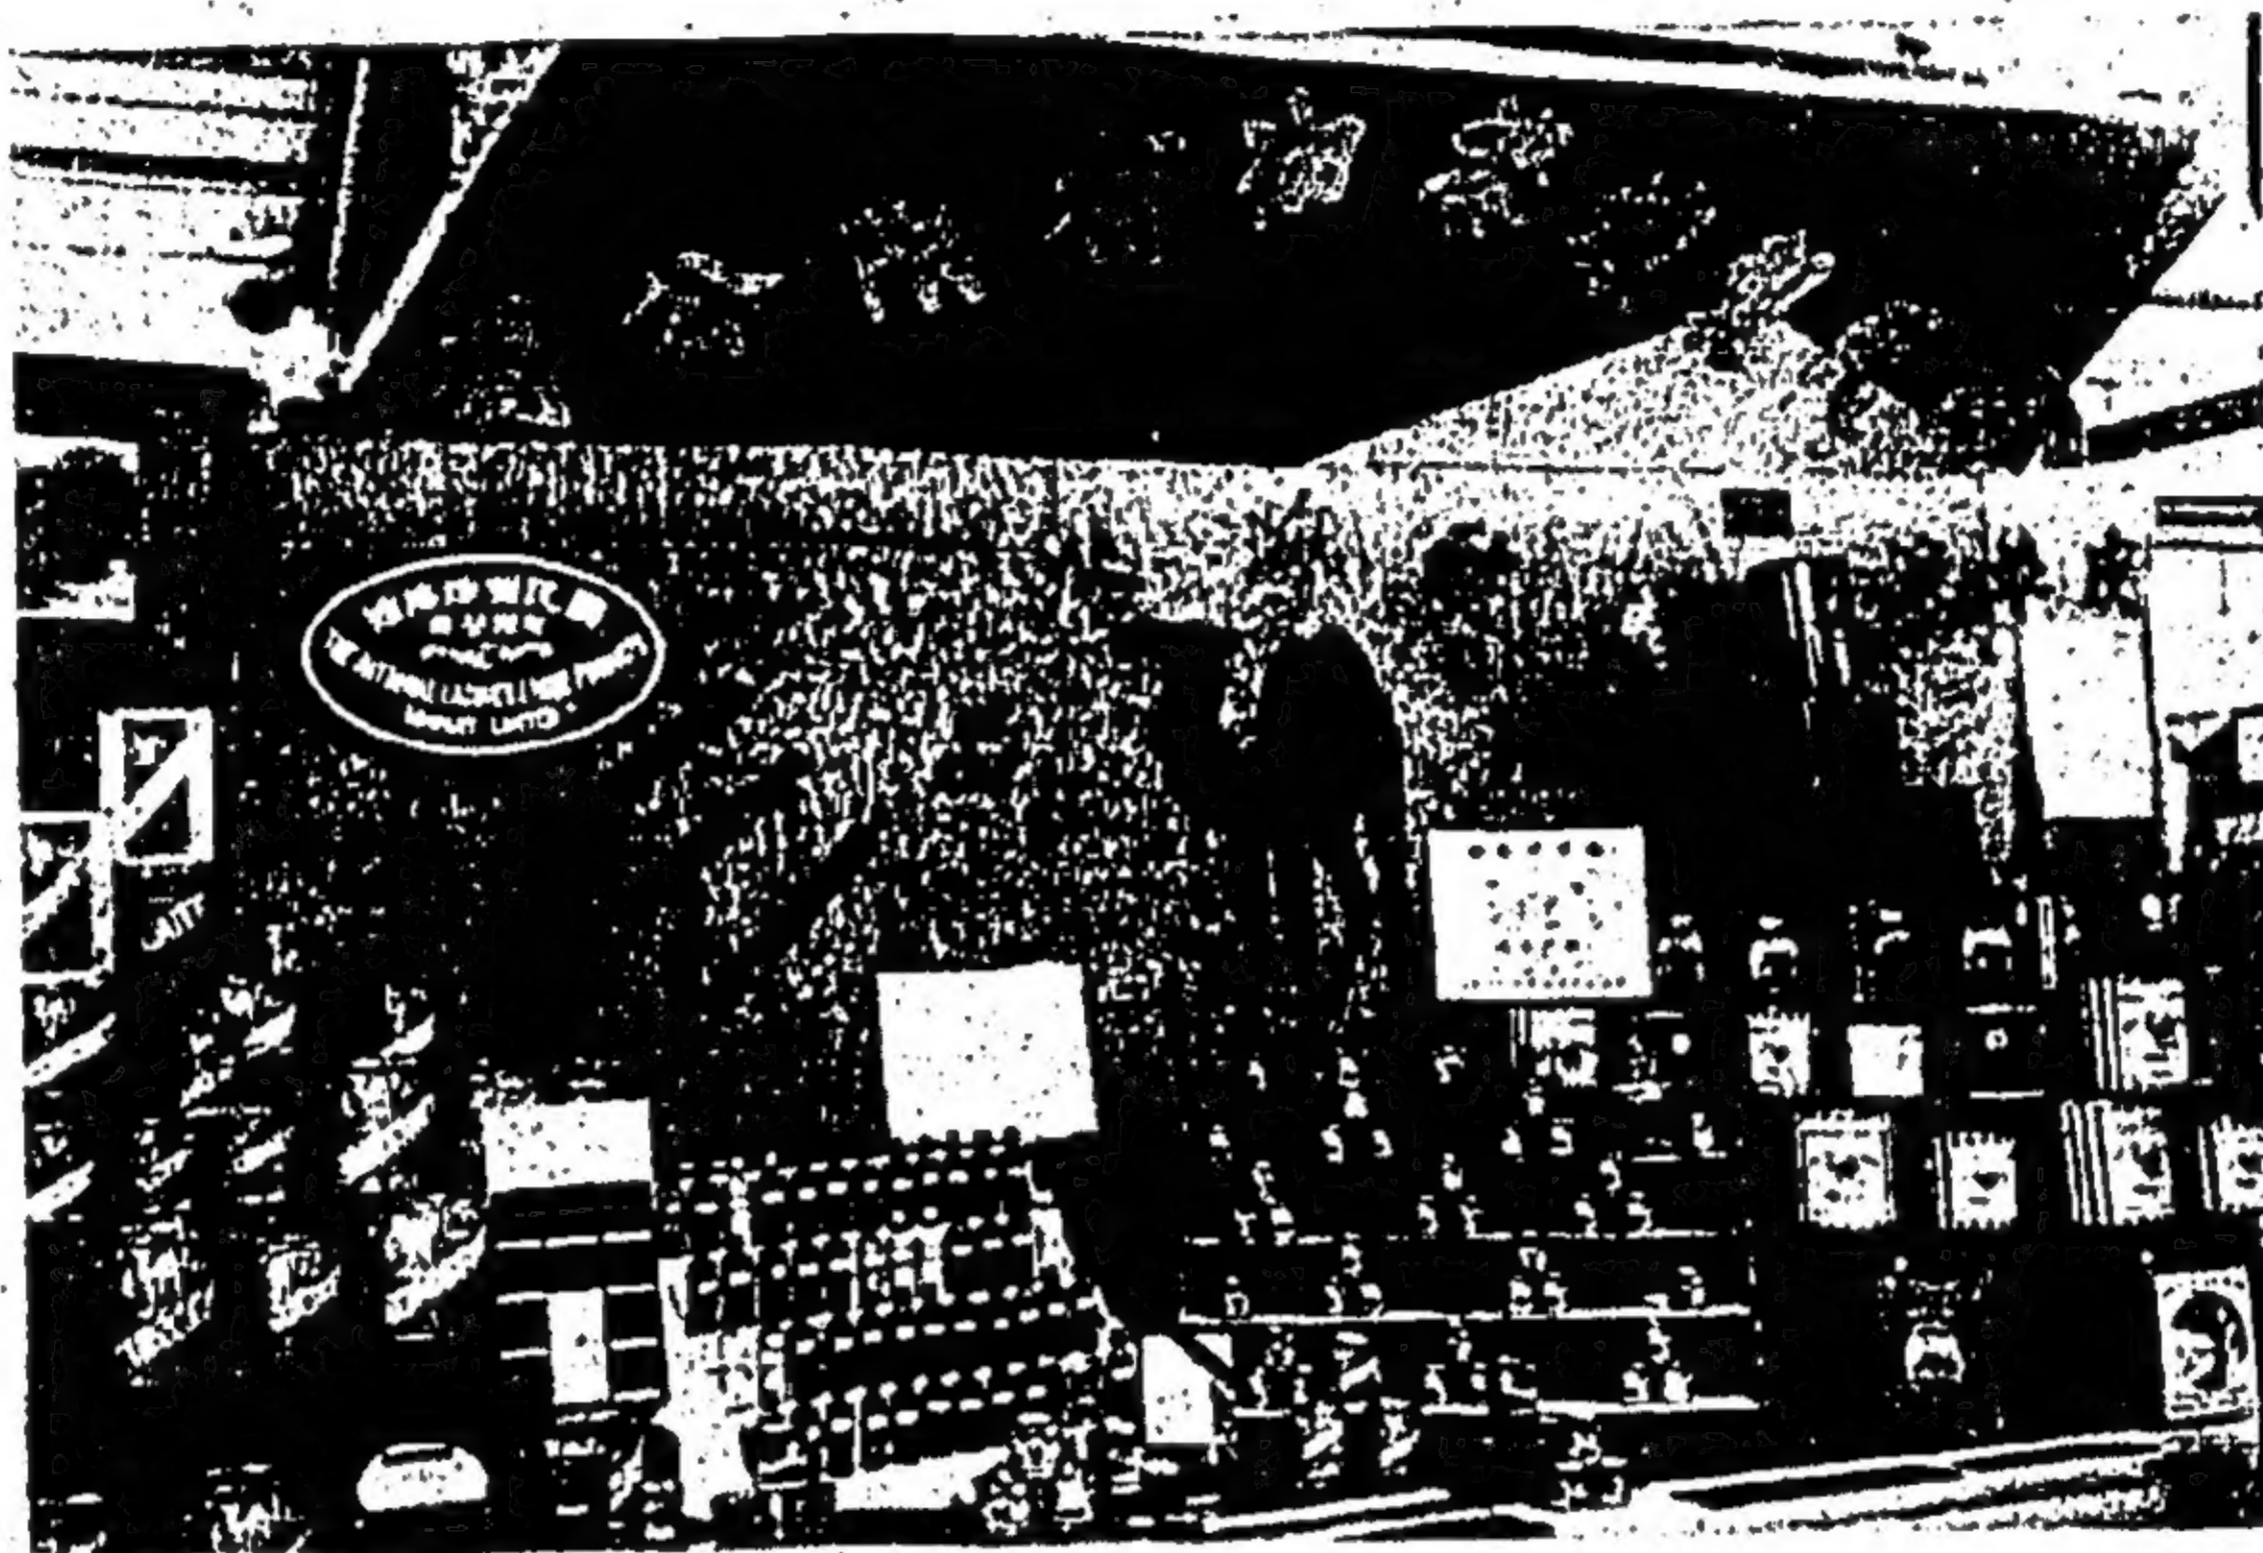

Directly he received a summons Mr. Badger applied for a music licence, counsel added.

Mr. Willoughby Jardine, K.C., for Mr. Badger, urged that the incidental use of a wireless set on licensed premises did not render the licensee liable to have a music licence.

The appeal was dismissed with costs and the decision of the Recorder affirmed.

Lord Hewart said the Recorder came to a proper conclusion. That conclusion, and the canon upon which he acted, was that, in order that a conviction might stand, there must be some sort of continuous or regular use of the wireless set for transmission of music.

Mr. Justice Avory said the facts were that the music from the set was only heard for about an hour at a time. It was not a case in which a musical instrument was continually used.

MIRACLES Can HAPPEN CHURCHMAN'S OPINION

Dr. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, preaching before the University of Cambridge discussed miracles—"psychological" and "material."

He declared his acceptance of the former, which he defined as "mind-states which reveal the active presence of God."

But, he said, adequate evidence for the existence of "material" miracles—"branches of so-called laws of Nature"—was not forthcoming.

Dr. Barnes said that view of the extent and development of the universe and of this earth which is the result of scientific inquiry, is now accepted by all, but ecclesiastical cranks.

A MODERN BELIEF.

"I myself," he continued, "have no doubt that God reveals Himself to those who wait upon Him. Were this feeling not both general and with some basis in truth the habit of prayer might be expected to cease."

"Belief that God does not interfere with the uniformities of Nature which express His will is comparatively modern."

"It has grown strong as the triumphs of scientific method have spread. Naturally, it has profoundly influenced religious beliefs."

"A generation ago men had begun to approach the Old Testament with the assumption that the Nature-miracles recorded therein were not objective facts. But only in our own time has it come about that in the approach to the Gospels the same assumption is made."

"In consequence, their value as history is distrusted and many teachers—especially in the elementary schools of the country—are reluctant to teach the Christian faith. Thus a situation has arisen which, though too commonly avoided by leaders of religious thought, is of fundamental importance."

WHAT DO WE LOSE?

"I myself feel that the argument against material miracles has become so strong that, whatever our private convictions, we had better not attempt to overthrow it."

"Let us grant that in the Gospels we have the results of popular preaching and popular myth-making; that the records are not history in the modern sense, but in part results of imaginative meditation and religious enthusiasm. Do we thereby lose much worth keeping?"

"The fact is," Dr. Barnes continued, "that the Christian faith must rest upon its appeal to the heart and mind of man. We believe Jesus to have been divine not because of his Virgin Birth—such births are common enough in the insect world—but because in Himself and in His teaching He seems to us to reveal God."

"A child likes marvels, the gorgeous magic of imaginary, supernatural power; the grown man sets aside such fancies and seeks spiritual reality."

"And if we to-day are at a stage of growth when we too are beginning to disentangle spiritual reality from the myths which probably helped to preserve it, need we be troubled by our deepened understanding?"

The TIME TEST and

'ASPRO'

THE old idea that a dozen medicines were needed for a dozen complaints—that laying up for indefinite periods was necessary—that it was also necessary to take dangerous drugs and narcotics—was an illusion. 'ASPRO' has dispelled it. For it is the medicine that takes the place of a dozen medicines, because, after ingestion in the system, it is an internal antiseptic—an anti-pyretic or fever reducer—an anti-periodic—a powerful germicide, and a solvent of Uric Acid, and, therefore, banishes the causes of numerous complaints. That's why 'ASPRO' banishes headaches in five minutes. It's the time test for quick action, and it stands the test of time. 'ASPRO' soothes the irritable—brings sweet sleep to the sleepless—relieves rheumatism not harm the heart or the stomach. It can be taken by all, from child to parent, anywhere, any time. The price is within the reach of all.

'ASPRO' Hunts Out Neuralgia and Rheumatism

Dear Sir,
I give you great pleasure to pen these lines of appreciation for the wonderful benefit you 'ASPRO' Tablets. I have been for some time a martyr to NEURALGIA and RHEUMATISM, and have tried various remedies, but without any beneficial results. I was advised by a friend to try 'ASPRO', which advice I took with remarkable results. After taking six tablets, my Neuralgia disappeared. I continued taking two after every meal, and can now thankfully say that I am free from the pain. You will, therefore, quite understand the pleasure I derive in recommending such a wonderfully simple medicine to other sufferers.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) FRANK AUSTIN

THE ARMS TRAFFIC VEIL

Whilst the Labour view against the manufacture of armaments for private gain
did not secure the endorsement of the House of Commons on Thursday, the debate did at any rate disclose a unanimity of view on the desirability of strict control of the industry. The difference between the Government and Labour outlook is merely one of method—the former favouring control by international agreement, and the latter by means of Government monopoly. It is difficult, on the summarised version of Mr. Baldwin's speech, to follow the argument that Government monopoly would lead to increased world production rather than otherwise. Sir John Simon was much more convincing when he dwelt on the difficulties of this method and on the tremendous cost which would be involved. The Labour plea that Britain should set an example by initiating a Government monopoly was effectively disposed of by the Government spokesmen.
The plain fact is that in the realm of disarmament Britain has already done more by way of example than any other country, even to a point which has caused doubts to be raised whether she has not in the process jeopardised her own security. By ratifying the Convention for the suppression of international trade in armaments in 1925, Britain showed her sincerity on the issue, and the Government's aim now is to secure general endorsement of this instrument. Already, Britain has put into force a most stringent system of regulation and control, far beyond the measures adopted by other nations, which is ample guarantee that she is quite prepared to join in a system of international control. Unfortunately, there has so far been no evidence that other countries are willing to come into line. Actually, under the Covenant, members of the League of Nations expressed their willingness to entrust the League with the general supervision of the trade in arms and munitions, but efforts to evolve
a working arrangement have hitherto been of no avail. It is of interest, in this connection, to note that the International Federation of the League of Nations Society has committed itself to the view that the manu-

NOTES OF THE DAY HONGKONG DEFENCES

Hongkong is to experiment with its anti-aircraft defence weapons on November 20. During the evening "attacking" planes will sweep in from some unknown direction and endeavour to escape
the stalling fingers of the searchlight batteries and the sharp eyes of gunners. Hongkong will be in semi-darkness, and lending an atmosphere of realism to the occasion the Colony will be warned of the approach of hostile aircraft by the firing of rockets and the shrilling of warships' sirens.
The occasion will provide something spectacular for the entertainment of the Colony. What else the experiment will provide,
in the way of useful information for the authorities concerned, is of technical interest only. The Colony's anti-aircraft defences are not advertised and it is impossible to conjecture what sort of a fight they could put up against a bombing attack. If they are not great, it is because they are not necessary in these days of peace. However, with the nearer possibility of removal of restrictions against fortification of Far East points, there may be some who will attach significance to an operation which for Hongkong, is unusual.

ANY ADDITION?

Without in any way desiring to suggest the necessity of immediate additions to the Colony's anti-aircraft defence units, which is,
after all, somebody else's business,
it is perhaps timely to remember the speed at which offensive aircraft are being developed by the powers of the world. For a number of years Great Britain has been bound by treaty to refrain from the further fortification of Hongkong and from developing it as an air base. During those years Japan, China and Russia have been developing air fleets of large dimensions. Russia is supposed to possess the biggest fighting air force in the world.
These nations are friendly to Great Britain, but in the event of an outbreak of hostilities in which either of them was involved Hongkong might conceivably be called upon to defend herself. Unless her fortification was of a modern nature, of a sort which could resist an attack by air bombers, the Colony would be in a very helpless condition. It is common knowledge that Britain plans to increase very considerably her fighting aircraft forces at Singapore, but it has not been suggested that any precautions of this nature are to be taken here.

ALARM IN BRITAIN

There is in Britain an increasingly insistent demand for greater air defence forces. Even the decision of the Government to add to the strength of the air arm a number of squadrons has not allayed the fears of a proportion of the population. "How much longer are our Ministers going to dawdle in the face of danger?"
asks one commentator. It is pointed out that the United States Senate Committee's inquiry into arms traffic disclosed that American manufacturers had been selling to Germany equipment which would make possible the fitting up of 100 aeroplanes a month in times of emergency. It was predicted by some well-informed Americans that at the end of the current year
Germany would possess a fleet of 2,000 military aircraft. There are French authorities who place the number of German aircraft at present available for war at 5,000,
and some even assert that the fleet can muster twice that number. A hostile critic of the German Government says plans are laid for the building of an air fleet of 20,000 machines. The perilous fact, in the view of able observers, is not that Germany is arming, but that the British authorities, despite the critical state of Europe, are still, in the matter of vital air armaments, contenting themselves with talk and half measures which are not to be carried out for five years.
The total number of available aircraft for the defence of Great Britain is 500, of which nearly half are antiquated types.

facture and sale of armaments for private profit is a decided evil. Despite the attitude of the British Government, there are certainly grave objections to the system by which private firms engage in armaments production, notably the working up of war scares for the purpose of increasing the demand for the instruments of war. But if there is no prospect of getting international agreement for the suppression of such traffic in its entirety, it should surely be possible to evolve a plan of supervision and inspection under the auspices of the League of Nations. Unless something in this direction is achieved, there seems little likelihood of preventing a race in armaments which in the long run must have disastrous consequences.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG

Nov. 1st.—This day, being a florin or so, but sadly grieved Thursday, I to the wharf very believe but find that my friend Captain Jack hath brought his shippe alongside at a half after six of the morning, which in my judgement is a mighty skilful proceeding for his owners, but a grievous matter to husbands and wives, for even after I have been separated from my wife, poor wretch, for the space of a year,
I am minded that she would take it very ill did I disturb her at a half after six on a November morning. But I do fear that these small points do be of small moment with ship-captains. However, I do go aboard about eight of the clock and, praise be to God,
I do find my wife very well, though the passage hath been, as I gather, somewhat hot. Much trouble with the baggage and I am minded that the new rule that coolies may not board the shippe is less good than it seems, when all baggage, unless hand-carried by passengers, is slung over the side in rope slings.
And so, not knowing this, I did peremitt to carry ashore my wife's small suit case, and two wiferys are broken, though how or where I know not, or cannot prove. But I know upon whom I do wish the consequent ill-luck!
Once upon the wharf and all is mingled in a sea of opinionastre and pugnacious coolies who seem under no control. But whether they are under private or public control I know not. Yet it comes into my mind that it might be well did certain parties devote the time they now do spend in criticising the King's Government in setting their own houses in order.
At last we do fall clear of the crowd, and so to the Clubbe, where we do revive ourselves in Whipenade with a glass or two of the wine of Xeres. Later for nunch-on to the Peake, where we do stay with Sir R. Harpenden while our new house is being ordered.
In the afternoon, my wife and I do visit it, where I do unpack a great crate, and am mighty glad to find that our best amber glass hath travelled safely and no breakages. For which I do praise the P. and O. Baggage Master. The whether it will survive the washing of the coolie I know not!

Nov. 2nd.—This day I do take leave of absence from my office and to Town with my wife, where we do take great counsel with drapers and such merchants upon curtains and chair-coverings, and I do perceive—to my terror—that the market therein promises to be strong. To nunchon upon the Peake, and after to my new house,
where I do unpack goods stored
there two and a half years, and find them pretty well, to my great possible delight. But when I do walk round the house with my Contractor, I do nigh fall in a swoond, so much there is to do.
Dined and early to bed.

Nov. 3rd.—This day to my office
betimes as I am persuaded that it cannot run smoothly unless I do visit it upon occasion. Very busy and later to the Clubbe, where I
do meet my lady wife and we take
our nunchon in the Snake Pit.
Later to the Races, where she
meets many old friends, but is less lucky in the wagering. Yet for once I do make a killing, as I do
but wagger thrice, and each time
for a win, and fall not once of it.
Yet I do consider that Mr. J. Heard did ride a most excellently judged race to land West Parade home by a short head. And this, to my mind, was the most excellent piece of riding of the day. So home, pleased at having won some thirty

Nov. 4th.—To the house all day, and very busy, but Lord! there is little to show for it in the end.
Talked at length with my Fa Wong who, as I suppose, will do pretty well. Dined quietly, and early to bed.

Nov. 5th.—Reading this day in the news sheets, I learn that in Paris a fair lady hath shot her husband dead for that he did not return at the correct dinner hour.
And I am minded that, were such custom in force in the Colony, it would be a sound investment to have shares in Brown, Jones and Company. It seems that in Paris they do but sentence the lady to two years' imprisonment, and that inoperative, as she is a first offender. And I am glad at heart to see that there is one place where they do regard the taking of life at its proper value. I do later visit my house and there I am mighty pleased to find that my radishes are ready for eating, and so do pull a dish for Sir R. Harpenden's table, which later we do eat very merrily. After his lady and mine being at meat with Mr. Franco's lady, we do fall to playing Con-track, and, for a wonder, I do win a little. But Lord! we do play on and on, and our ladies to bed—
and at the latter end I do crawl most quietly to my bed, and to my great comfort do not awake my wife, who, poor wretch, sleeps pretty sound after her struggles with the house.

Nov. 7th.—To the office, where I am very busy with my papers, and after to the Clubbe, where I do meet my old friend, Mr. E.
Hamilton, who also goes to a new house, and seems mighty thronged with business over it. He also grumbles much that he is not on the publick telephone, but that his friends must ring up the Government number 39, and thereafter ask for 151, tho' how this shall be difficult I do not see, provided they do make a note of it. Later to the house, where my wife and I do
visit it upon occasion. Very busy
and later to the Clubbe, where I
do meet my lady wife and we take
our nunchon in the Snake Pit.
Later to the Races, where she
meets many old friends, but is less
lucky in the wagering. Yet for
once I do make a killing, as I do
but wagger thrice, and each time
for a win, and fall not once of it.
Yet I do consider that Mr. J. Heard

a short head. And this, to my mind, was the most excellent piece

Woolen Frocks for Football Games

HERE'S a three-piece suit of knitted rabbit's wool, with a straight skirt with flared godets, a red and white striped pull-over and a plain black cardigan to match the skirt. A fuzzy angora bow fastens the neckline of the pull-over.

THE SWAGGER ensemble above, in moss green rabbit's hair woolen, has a one-piece dress with a wide scarf, lined with brown velvet, and a three-quarters length coat with a long roll collar.

PERFECT for football games is this one-piece woolen sports dress and swagger coat of Spanish ocelot. The coat has a stand-up collar, wooden buttons and patch pockets. It's lined with soft plaid woolen.

A FULL-LENGTH camel's hair coat is just the thing to wear in football weather. This one has raglan shoulders, a slit in the center of the back, leather buttons, high round collar and loose sleeves strapped at the wrists.

These spectator sports costumes will keep you warm---and they will also meet fashion's demands

THIS tailored one-piece frock of brown rough-textured wool is trimmed with amusing gold chain ornaments that end in leather tassels. There's a frilly supple yoke on the bodice.

Costumes Courtesy of Lord and Taylor's New York

FOOTBALL fashions are as exciting as the team's winning touchdown. And, since these new spectator sports clothes are a subtle cross between street and office dresses, they're practical.

The young girl, of course, goes to football games in woolen frocks. Or she simply wears a sweater and skirt. However, the woman who lives in town must have one special outfit to wear when she cheers the team on to bigger and better scores. If she shops carefully, it can be a double-duty ensemble—appropriate for the street as well as for football.

Plain and novelty woollens fashion a good many of the bright little sports dresses. Rabbits' hair wool—less hairy than formerly—is widely used. So are smooth-surfaced plaids as well as nubbed and boucle woollens.

The dresses themselves are quite plain with slimly tailored, straight skirts. They depend on amusing gadgets such as bow-and-arrow pins, seashell buttons and ball and chain fastenings to give that fun-to-wear touch that women love. One grand two-piece sports dress in dark green wool is held together in front with notebook rings.

Another sports dress is made of pale blue woolen, trimmed with irregular patches of wool in a rich wine shade. There's a wine-colored velvet beret to wear with it.

Ensembles, consisting of one-piece dresses and three-quarters swagger coats, lined with plaid woolen or soft fur, are good, too. If you're really particular about the way you look in the bleachers, get a sports dress mannish tweed in greyish colours and top it with a three-quarters swagger coat of grey kidskin or muskrat. Wear a red beret and a red and blue striped scarf.

If you're planning to go to a tea-dance after the game, take along a bright-coloured informal afternoon dress that can be worn with the same grey coat. And pack an extra beret or some little hat that won't get wrinkled.

Speaking of hats, don't forget the importance of other accessories. There are alligator oxfords and sports pumps with medium heels. And new suede and kidskin moccasin-type shoes that go well with spectator sports frocks of rabbits' hair wool. You can get a bag to match your shoes, and gloves to match your scarf or beret.

Gloves, by the way, never have been more intriguing. They are made of every fabric under the sun, including woollens, silks, velvets, corduroys, tweeds and silk and wool mixtures. One exclusive shop shows herringbone tweed gloves to wear with a coat of that fabric. Another features brown corduroy gauntlets, beret and scarf with a dark green corduroy suit.

NAZI BACK-TO-HOME SCHEME

By Mary Margaret McBride.

New York—Whatever else may be said of it, the back-to-the-home movement in Germany is accepted by most of the women affected, and especially by the younger ones among them, as a kind of glorification of womanhood.

That is the opinion of Ruth F. Woodsmall, American student, author and lecturer, who has just completed an exhaustive study of the situation in the course of which she talked with many of the older feminists and an equal number of those who are heart and soul in the new movement.

Miss Woodsmall was impressed with the sportmanship of the former leaders who all urged her to get both sides in order that she might present to the world a fair picture of what is really happening.

IDEALIZED INTERPRETATION.

"There can be no question," Miss Woodsmall said, "but that many German women under the new regime have accepted an idealistic interpretation of their new status. They don't regard the fact that they will no longer contribute along independent lines as a loss. They feel that it is better for their efforts to be along the lines of their special gifts as women. They have been told, and they agree, that an individualistic woman's movement doesn't fit in with a unified, controlled state such as theirs now is. 'The attempt of women to be equals of men has been presented as entailing a loss of essential womanhood. Officials have stressed that women's assets are of the instinctive and emotional order. Most of these women are truly convinced that they are about to recapture lost opportunities.'

Another discovery Miss Woodsmall made is that while many women have been withdrawn both by compulsion and by the reconditioning of their environment from work outside the home, there are still women in professions and business and moreover, preparing women for careers has by no means entirely ceased.

"Many women in the professions still go on with their work," the surveyor explains, "but the professions are being analyzed to find the particular branch into which women will fit best from the government's point of view. Thus women doctors are being withdrawn from general practice and surgery and concentrated in the field of women's and children's diseases. Feminine lawyers are being relegated more and more to the children's courts, and their ambition to become judges is being discouraged since the powers declare that they are not primarily suited for the bench.

HIGHER EDUCATION CURBED.

"Fewer women are to have university educations, though perhaps that is not so important since the number of men who may go to college has also been cut. The whole trend is to take a small, carefully-chosen minority of the women who go on to higher education. The government is frankly putting up barriers so that only the highly-fitted can make the grade."

The drastic measures of the early days when women were automatically replaced by men all the way down the line have been modified, Miss Woodsmall found, partly because they were increasing the relief load since a number of women replaced were wage earners for families. To-day preference is given to men—but the circumstances are taken into consideration.

One occupation, according to Miss Woodsmall, will definitely remain feminine. The Nazis have discovered that for efficiency they must have women stenographers!

One hundred and fifty million marks were loaned by the Government in 1933 to make the home and marriage more attractive to women, Miss Woodsmall points out. This money went to young married couples and their debts are to be progressively reduced by the number of children born. Four children will mean cancellation of a thousand-mark loan.

German women and girls are being taught domestic hygiene and housework under supervision of trained nurses and teachers at special clinics.

All over Germany, women are being drawn into courses on home-making. Houses that can be furnished tastefully but cheaply are exhibited. Girls are enrolled in health and hygiene classes so that they may become strong and fitted to bear sturdy babies.

EXPERIENCE REFUTES CLAIMS.

According to Miss Woodsmall, the women who used to be leaders in Germany's political life and still hold to their old views, feel that the new period represents the beginning of a reversion to the post-war period. Since many of those who had been most prominent in political and professional life since the war had both families and careers, they feel that their experience completely refutes the contention of the Government that a woman cannot manage both.

However, each woman in the main are living quietly. Perhaps their moment will come but not yet.

Miss Woodsmall, who did war work in France and Germany under the auspices of the Y.W.C.A., speaks German fluently. While she was abroad this time, she attended the World's Council of Y. W. C. A. at Geneva as one of twenty American delegates.

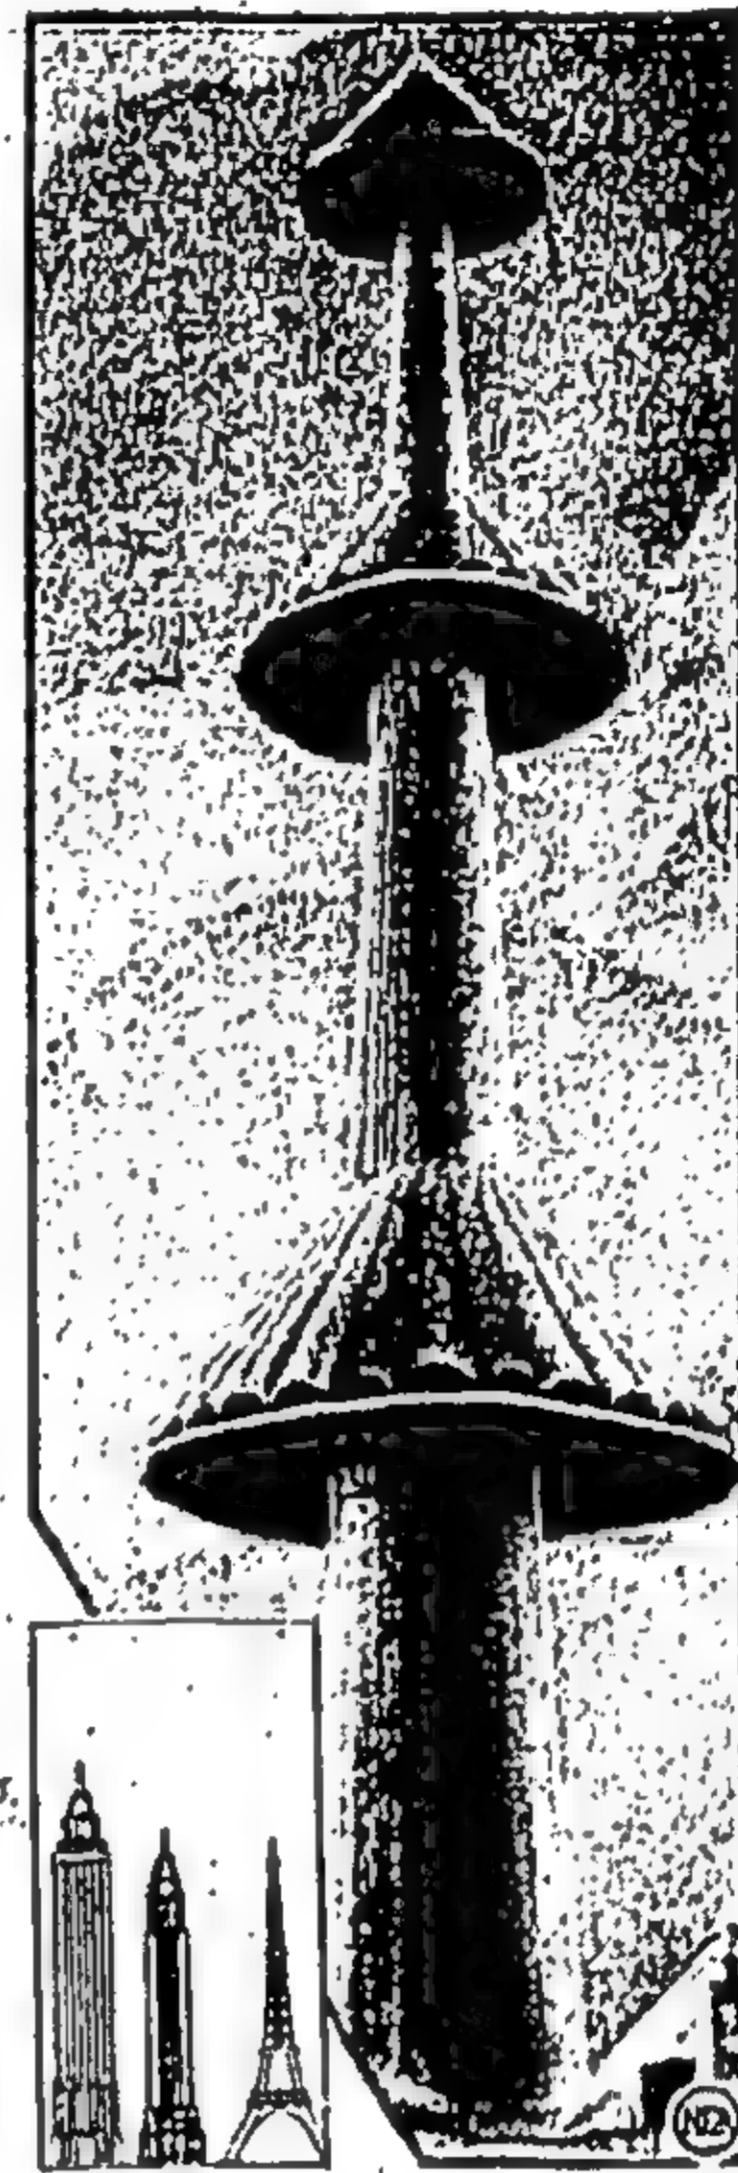

PARIS AIR FORTRESS

HUGE "TOADSTOOL" TOWER

Two French scientists have issued plans for a tower, to be built near Paris, more than a mile high. It might be, by their reckoning, as much as six times as high as the Empire State building.

The purpose of the tower is air defence in case of war. These monstrous platforms would allow the launching of airplanes by the score.

The point the Frenchmen make is that the speed of modern aircraft makes defence tactics useless if defence planes must take off from the ground. Where minutes,

CHINA BUILDING

Repair Service & Chiropody

even seconds count, the time lost in climbing from the ground to a fighting position is fatal.

HIGH BUILDING RECORD.

Prestige also plays its part in the project. The French point out that when the Eiffel Tower was built in 1889 it became instantly one of the most famous structures in the world and was only eclipsed in height 40 years later with the completion of the Empire State Building.

For this reason they advocate the erection of the tower, which would require 10,000,000 tons of cement, at the big French military base at Issy-les-Moulineaux, near Paris.

The two originators of the plan are Henry Lossier, engineer and high official of the International Association of Bridges and Structures; and Faure Dujarric architect.

OFFICIAL FEAR.

Objects are raised in semi-official quarters on the ground that even if the scientists' calculations are correct, such a tower would be an easy mark for enemy sabotage even in time of peace. While in war, it would be a fine target for heavy artillery such as Germany's "Big Berthas" in the last war.

The specifications of the odd "triple-headed toadstool" now require it to be 2,000 metres—more than 6,000 feet—in height. It would be approximately 650 feet in diameter at the base, and about 120 feet in diameter at the summit.

Three cone-like roofed platforms would sprout from it at even intervals, each one supplied with a circular row of openings like hangar-doors from which planes could be launched on inclines.

300 CANNON AT ONCE.

The walls at the base would be close to 40 feet thick. There would be two elevators inside for planes and three for personnel. A ramp leading upward would be useful in case of elevator breakdown. Each platform would be armed with artillery, and allowance is made in the calculations for 300 cannon to be fired in the same direction in a single salvo without affecting stability. Allowance for wind pressure is also made, and the tower would be able to sway as much as four feet without injury.

Hangars, work shops, quarters for flyers, hospitals and other facilities could be installed. A power house at the base would supply essential current.

Observation posts at the top would be useful not only for military needs but for research in radio, in meteorology and astronomy. And the whole tower would be the biggest boast that France has had, constructionally speaking, for many years, its originators say.

Saving the Pennies

VIGNETTES OF LIFE

By J. NORMAN LYND

SOME ARE SAVING UP TO GET MARRIED—OTHERS ARE GETTING MARRIED AND JUST TRUSTING TO LUCK OR RELATIVES.

A FUND SHOULD BE STARTED TO SEND THE HEIR-APPARENT TO COLLEGE—OR A REFORM SCHOOL.

NORMAN LYND

IN SOME CASES IT IS NECESSARY TO HAVE THE TAILOR BUILD IN A SECRET OR HOLD-OUT POCKET, IF ONE WANTS TO SAVE A LITTLE.

SAVE? WITH SIX OR SEVEN KIDS GRINDING THE SOLES OFF THEIR SHOES!

SOME STILL SWEAR BY THE OLD TEAPOT BANK

THOSE WHO EXPECT TO MEET UP WITH INDIANS AND BUFFALOES ARE SAVING UP FOR SKINNING KNIVES

THESE CHILDREN'S BANKS CAN BE—AND ARE—EASILY ROBBED. WE GET BEST RESULTS WITH A TABLE KNIFE ... IN SEIZ, TILT AND WITHDRAW—NEVER MIND THE ETHICS—THESE ARE TROUBLOUS TIMES.

Revenge, in 1910-21 as gunnery officer on the staff of Vice-Admiral Sir Sydney Fremantle, and in 1923-25 as executive officer, the two periods being interspersed with service in the Ordnance Department at the Admiralty. As a captain since December, 1925, he has been Deputy Director of the Gunnery Division and has commanded the 3rd Destroyer Flotilla and the Devonport Gunnery School. The fact that he is to be relieved by Captain Thomson is the more interesting because in 1924 he succeeded Captain Thomson in command of the 3rd Flotilla in the Mediterranean.

COMMODORE'S CAREER.

Commodore Frank Elliott, O.B.E., joined H.M.S. Britannia in 1909 at the age of 15. He served as Midshipman on board H.M.S. Illustrious in the Mediterranean in 1901-1902, and in H.M.S. Centurion in China in 1903-1904. He then served as Sub-Lieutenant in H.M.S. Venerable, Flagship of Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, in the Mediterranean in 1907, and on promotion to Lieutenant, served in H.M.S. King Edward VII, Flagship of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, from which ship he was appointed to H.M.S. Excellent, to qualify as a Gunnery Lieutenant.

In 1910, he served as Gunnery Officer of H.M.S. Prince George and subsequently of H.M.S. Commonwealth, going through the Agadir incident. He was then selected as Gunnery Officer of the Staff of Admiral Arthur Limpus, with the British Naval Mission to Turkey from 1912-1914.

In May 1914, he was sent home by Dismal Pasha with 2,000 Turkish sailors to act as adviser to the Captains of the two Turkish battleships then completing at Harrow and Newcastle. On war breaking out, these ships the Sultan Osman Pasha and the chardeh V—were taken over by the British Government and renamed Agincourt and Erin. Commodore Elliott being appointed Gunnery Officer of the former.

IN BATTLE OF JUTLAND.

After eight months of war, he was transferred to H.M.S. Bonbow, Flagship of Admiral Sir Doveton Sturdee, who had just returned from his victory at the Battle of the Falkland Islands, and in this ship he fought in the Battle of Jutland and took part in many sweeps down the North Sea.

Promoted to Commander in the summer of 1918, he was sent to H.M.S. Excellent to instruct officers qualifying as gunnery specialists just before the surrender of the German Fleet. During this appointment, he spent a short time while on leave with the 3rd Australian Division in France.

In 1919 he was appointed Executive Officer of H.M.S. Valiant, Flagship of Admiral Sir Lewis Clive-Baker, and in 1922 he became Secretary of the Ordnance Committee at Woolwich. In 1924-1925 he served with the Home Fleet in H.M. Ship Revenge and Resolution as Squadron Gunnery Officer on the Staff of Admirals Sir Howard Kelly and Sir William Boyle.

On promotion to Captain, in December 1925, he served temporarily as Captain of Devonport Gunnery School, and in 1927 was appointed to command the Fifth Destroyer Flotilla, in the Home Fleet. After two years at sea he took up the appointment of Deputy Director of Naval Ordnance at the Admiralty, whence, in 1932, he took over command of the aircraft carrier H.M.S. Courageous. On this ship paying off, in May 1933, he was appointed as Commodore, Hongkong, and arrived in the Colony in July, 1933.

CHIANG'S TOUR

JUBILANT WELCOME AT TAIYUENFU

Taiyuenfu, Nov. 9. Taiyuenfu is in a holiday mood on the occasion of the presence of Marshal and Madame Chiang Kai-shek. The whole city is bedecked with flags and banners bearing welcome slogans, while a popular reception was held to-day in honour of the Generalissimo.

The enthusiasm of the inhabitants could only be compared by that shown over the success of the Kuomintang Northern Expedition in 1927.

The meeting between Marshal Chiang and General Yen Shih-shan, now being held here, is expected to produce substantial effect on the consolidation of the political situation in North China.—Central News Agency.

His Excellency the Governor has nominated Mr. D. J. Lewis and Mr. Sun Pak-ming as Members of the Court of the University of Hongkong for a further period of three years.

the most conspicuous marks on the road to peace that our generation can hope to erect.

WARNING NOTE.

"But, in the meantime, we must take steps to secure that if we are met by aggression we shall at least be in a position to defend ourselves," declared the Prime Minister.

He referred to the example Great Britain had shown in disarmament.

"Our experience has proved that in the present state of the world's mind disarmament by example is not an effective way to reduce arms or increase international confidence and so strengthen peace," said the Premier.

"I believe with all my heart that the first and last word in security is an international agreement on the scales of national armament, and the lower the scales the greater the security of nations. But if this agreement is refused the defence requirements must be met in a way which will put the non-aggressive purpose of the nation beyond question."

"I believe that the country will trust us to do what is necessary without overlooking upon an armaments race or forgetting, while providing for our own security, that our more prominent duty is to make war impossible in the future," could hardly be exaggerated.

LORD LONDONDERRY.

Lord Londonderry, Minister for Air, also referred to the naval conference and said that the importance of the results to be achieved could hardly be exaggerated.

"It is our earnest hope," he said, "that an arrangement will be secured whereby competition and unnecessary expenditure in naval armaments can be avoided. Our endeavour is to reach an agreement which will leave us free to maintain the fleet at the minimum strength necessary to our own security and at the same time give equal satisfaction and a sense of security to all other powers concerned."—Reuter.

Later the visitors were the guests of the Governor of Macao and Madame Bernardes de Miranda at Government House to luncheon, and subsequently, shortly before sunset, the Mindanao left Macao, the visiting consul returning to Hongkong.—Our Own Correspondent.

ON CRIMECLOSE POLICE
CO-OPERATIONDIRECTED FROM VIENNA

Vienna, Nov. 2.

For a more intensive war on international criminals police of more than twenty countries have drafted a new and more effective plan of campaign which includes close co-operation regardless of the politics which the governments of their respective countries may be playing from time to time.Crime is international and with the increased speed in communication and travel the people of the under-world have enlarged their sphere of action. In the future, however, they will find that they are known wherever they go even before they get there.Meeting in Vienna for the tenth gathering of the so-called I.K.K.
(International Kriminal Kommission) police representatives from almost every European country and several from overseas compared notes and observations, on the basis of which the new campaign was planned.For several years a "Roll of Dishonour," international in scope, has been kept in Vienna, seat of the I.K.K. Here are contained the finger-prints, rogues' gallery photographs, verbal description and general record of every criminal who is known to operate in more than one country or who is likely to begin such operations in the near future.From these records photostatic facsimiles were sent to various countries on request. By this method police in different countries were able to ascertain whether anyone whom they had arrested had a criminal record elsewhere. But only after arrest!

ADVANCE INFORMATION.

In the future they will have each criminal's record in advance of his arrival in their respective territory. The photostatic copies of all persons on this roll of dishonour are being prepared by hundreds,
and will be sent to the police of every city or town which cares to pay the cost of reproduction.Thus every police force which cares to have such can have an international as well as a local rogues' gallery. Detectives, when not busy on local crimes, will be able to commit to memory the faces of criminals who may arrive in their town next day.Each criminal has certain little tricks of operation which an expert detective can spot in a moment. By having a list of such specialities indexed any police force, when running down a puzzling local crime, can obtain valuable time-saving clues and tips.Whether pick-pocket, safe-cracker, cat-burglar, cheque-forgery, dope-smuggler, counterfeiter or whiteslaver, every criminal who has been in the hands of police of any city, and some who have so far evaded arrest—all will be kept under closer observation and control through the "Clearing House of Crime and Criminals" organized and conducted by members of one of the cleverest police organizations in the world, namely the Vienna Police.

GROUP SUPERVISION.

Each group of criminals and potential criminals will be supervised in a different way. For instance, the Gypsies of the world will probably be required in most countries, certainly in the Danube States, to carry "finger-print" passports.Attempts will also be made to minimize "white slavery." In this phase of their work, however, the police are still greatly handicapped by the absence of agreement between different states on the best method to handle prostitution.
Also there is no agreement on what constitutes "white slavery."
The police of most countries wish to have included under this term any financial exploitation by a second person of any woman regardless of her age.Memoranda on "white slavery"
and other questions they have prepared for consideration by the International Law Association and various committees of the League of Nations. Insofar as international agreements can be reached they will proceed to clean up many of the social evils as well as crimes against property and life.

MEDICO-LEGAL THEORY UPSET

EDINBURGH MEN'S DISCOVERY

A claim that arsenic absorbed into growing hair cannot be removed by prolonged soaking, and that that can be made a basis for distinguishing between arsenic absorbed during life and arsenic resulting from external contamination, is made by two doctors at the University of Edinburgh in a recent issue of the British Medical Journal.

The claim is made by Professor Sydney Smith, of the Department of Forensic Medicine of Edinburgh University, and his colleague, Mr. E. B. Hendry.

The presence and distribution of arsenic in the hair, nails, and skin, the keratin tissues, it is pointed out, has been of major significance in many published cases.

From the medico-legal aspect they state it would seem that the finding of arsenic in the hair would be strong evidence of its administration, but they recall the Seddon case and the Hearn case and contend that from similar facts opposite deductions were made on behalf of the Crown, and both to the disadvantage of the accused.

They have found by careful experimenting that hair and nails soaked in an arsenical solution absorb arsenic in increasing amounts. In other words, both hair and nails exhibit preferential absorption and not merely surface absorption.

"The importance of this observation," the investigators claim, "can hardly be exaggerated, for it has been customary to consider a higher concentration of arsenic in the keratin tissues than in the viscera as proof that the arsenic was absorbed by those tissues during life. That assumption is proved to be false."

PANAMA CONTROL SCHEME

GOVERNMENT URGED TO ACT

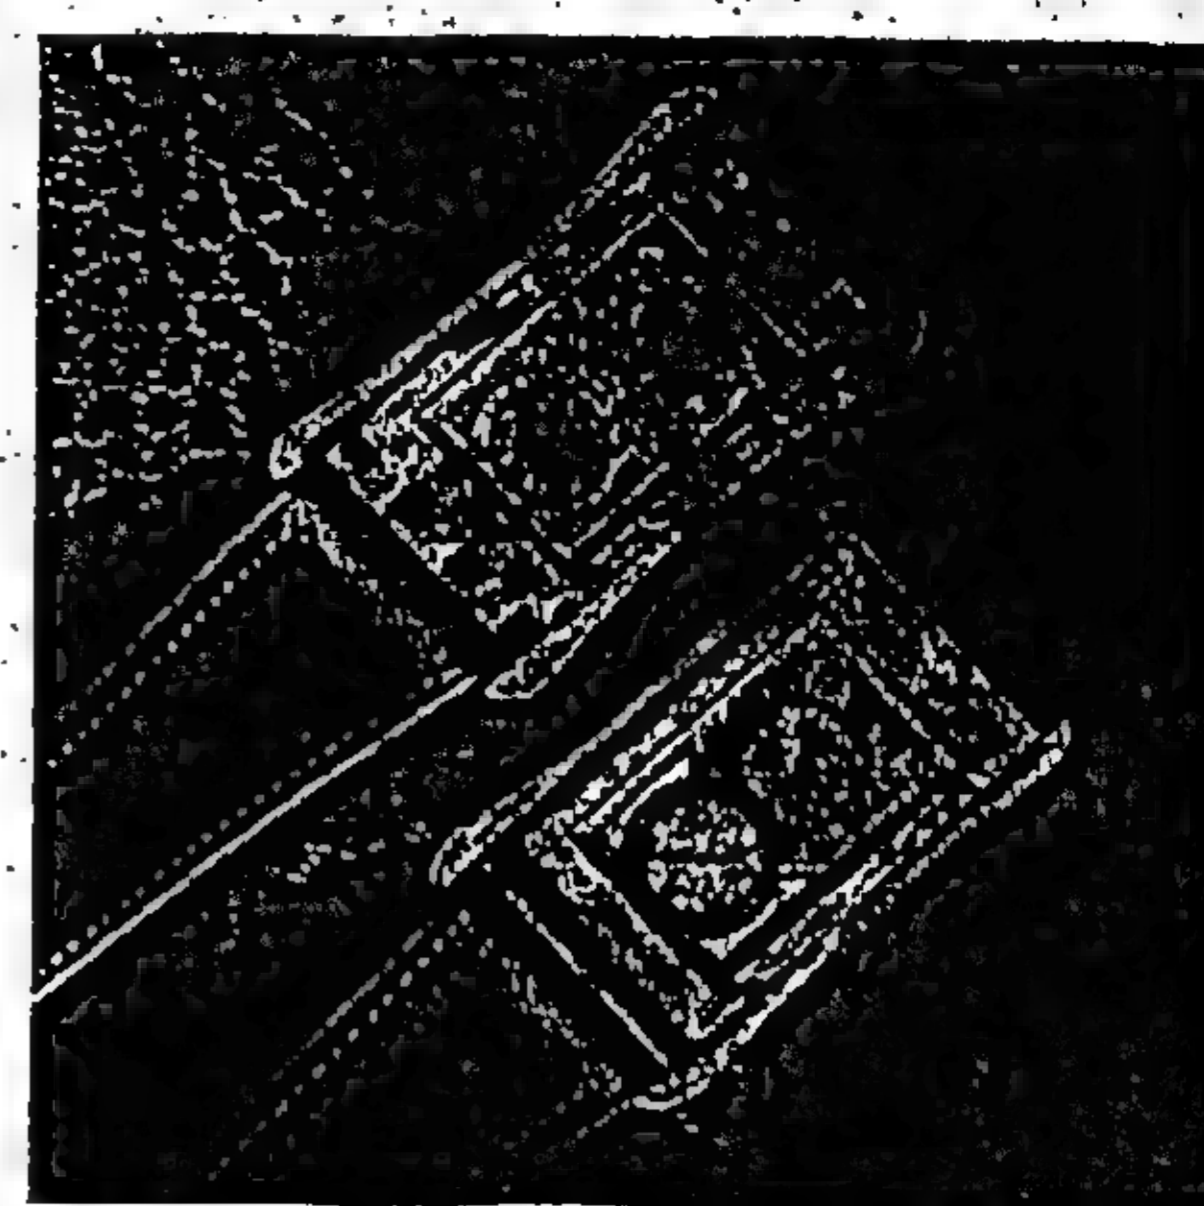

Chicago, Oct. 31.
Recommendation that Congress immediately form a Government corporation to absorb the Panama Canal and the Panama Railroad Company has been made by Mr. Marshall E. Dimock, associate professor of Public Administration at the University of Chicago.

Prof. Dimock's proposal, which appeared recently in a published form from the University of Chicago Press, was made after a year's survey of the Government's $600,000,000 Canal Zone properties.

He strongly opposed proposals for private ownership of the Canal and Railroad and said it "easily is the most successful Government enterprise under the American flag outside of Continental United States."—United Press.

Speedway Champion

FARNDON RETAINS HIS TITLE

Tom Farnon (New Cross) has retained his speedway open championship title by beating Max Grosskreutz (Belle Vue) at Wembley.

Each won a race and in the deciding race Farnon appeared a certain winner when, having won the toss for the deciding race, he drew away by four lengths at the first bend and was ten lengths ahead with less than half a lap to go. Then, however, he touched the fence, and, cleverly avoiding a crash, was brought almost to a standstill. In the few seconds Farnon roared up level with him and in the chase for home reached the line a few inches to the good. Farnon had the inside berth for the first race and won comfortably in 75sec., beating the record of 76.2sec., held by Ran Johnson. Grosskreutz eclipsed the new figures in the second heat when, leading all the way, he finished in 74.6 sec. Farnon's winning time in the deciding heat was 74.8sec.

ANTI-JEWISH TACTICE MUST NOT BE CARRIED ON CONDITION OF UNITED STATES' ACCEPTANCE GERMAN ASSURANCES

New York, Nov. 9. An unprecedented stand has been taken by Olympic officials of the United States in accepting Germany's invitation to compete in the Olympic games at Berlin in 1936. Heretofore the American Olympic committee, governing body of American participation, has accepted invitations unqualifiedly as a matter of routine.

On this occasion, however, there was a determined drive by Jews in America and others to have this country either not participate at all or at least warn Germany that its anti-Jewish tactics must not be carried on in the Olympics.

That resulted in the United States' acceptance being worded: "In the light of Mr. Brundage's (Avery S. Brundage, president of the committee who made a two-months trip of investigation in Germany) report and the attitude and assurances of representatives of the German Government, we accept the invitation of the German Olympic committee to the 1936 Olympic Games."

NO DISCRIMINATION.

This action was taken at a meeting recently of the committee called together here to receive Mr. Brundage's report after he returned from a tour of Germany. Mr. Brundage was sent to Germany last year after the Amateur Athletic Union had passed a resolution calling for proof that Germany would not discriminate against Jews in the Olympic games.

This resolution was referred to the American Olympic committee and in turn to the executive committee which delegated Brundage to go to Germany.

Mr. Brundage returned to report that he had talked to leaders of the two Jewish sport organizations in Germany, the Maccabi and the Front Soldiers. These leaders, he said, were satisfied with regulations made by the German government, that any Jew who was not proficient than other German athletes would be allowed to compete for Germany.

Mr. Brundage brought a statement from Herr Hans von Tschammer Osten, Reichsportsführer, signed and guaranteeing no discrimination against Jews.

Mr. Brundage also told the committee that it must concern itself with two problems: first, whether the Olympic committee, a sports body, should concern itself with the political and economic status of civilisation in Germany or confine itself to determining whether sports in Germany, the Olympic in particular, were conducted according to rules and regulations recognized everywhere by sportsmen. These are, chiefly, that there shall be no discrimination because of race, creed or colour.

COMMITTEE'S DECISION.

After some discussion the committee decided that it would base its decision on whether or not to accept the invitation solely on a basis of conditions surrounding sport.

Two Jewish members of the committee heatedly pointed out that despite promises made by Germany, that all athletes would be treated fairly and impartially there was no assurance they would be kept.

They listed broken promises of the Nazis and argued for a delay in a vote on the acceptance.

Mr. Gustavus Town Kirby, treasurer of the committee and long identified with amateur sports in the United States, moved for immediate, unqualified acceptance.

"We have no cause to accept with an implied threat or insult because we have no research to believe that Germany's promises will not be kept. Germany is coming to her senses and realising that the democracy of sport must be preserved," he said.

ASSURANCE WANTED.

Then Miss Charlotte Epstein, one of the Jewish members, said there should be some assurance Germany would keep its promise. "If we accept this invitation and Germany does not carry out its promises," Mr. Kirby said, "then I will do all that is in my power to reassemble this committee, say to Germany in effect that we have been deceived and that the United States team will be withdrawn."

Then Miss Epstein and the other Jewish member, Mr. Charles L. Ornstein, wanted this declaration made a part of the resolution accepting the invitation. Mr. Brundage and Mr. Kirby said this would not be "parliamentary, polite nor

HOCKEY NOTES

LAST WEEK'S TWO TIT-BITS

Ladies' Jumble Sale

(By "Bully-Off")

THE defeat of the Police, last year's Mamak champions, at the hands of the R.A.S.C., and the creditable performance of the Keppel in forcing the latter team to share eight goals with them the following day were the tit-bits of last week's hockey. The victory of the Service Corps came as a surprise to me, although they are playing much better hockey this year than they did last.

The Police are now lying third place in the table, having lost three points out of a possible eight. Above them are the Royal Corps of Signals, who are only at the head by virtue of the number of games they have played, and St. Andrew's, who have lost one game in the four league games they have played. The R.A.S.C. follow the Police in the table with two draws against them in three games played.

THE Hongkong Ladies Hockey Association have already turned to raising funds in preparation for the visit of Shanghai to the Colony early next year. They are holding a jumble sale at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, on Friday next at 2.30 p.m.

MUCH interest is centred round this afternoon's Cier Clark Cup game between the Hongkong Ladies and the Club de Recoletos. This will be the Hongkong Ladies' second tourney match this year and they should be good for a couple of goals more than their opponents.

SINCE their surprising defeat by the C.B.A. last week they have made several changes in their team. B. Hance will again be between the sticks with E. M. Gray and J. Smalley at full back. E. O'Hagen has been brought in at right half in place of A. Jacks who is playing to-morrow on the left wing, and B. M. Pope will play at centre half. The left half position is unchanged. P. M. Harrop will again lead the attack but there is a complete change in the right flank. V. Blackburn will be outside to the exclusion of W. Marsh and H. Hance will play inside to her. C. Ferguson will again fill the left inner position and A. Jacks will play outside-left.

G. E. R. Divett, who returned from leave last week, will probably make his first appearance this season for the Club against the 8th. Destroyer Flotilla on Wednesday. His presence in the team again will be welcomed.

I would here like to strike a rather different note and appeal to Civilian teams to make every possible effort to be on the field on time. I know it is not an easy matter to get away from work in time to catch the quarter to five Ferry but I think they might make a special effort to catch the five minutes to five boat at least. I mention this because on several occasions recently when Civilian teams have been opposed to Service sides the games have been scheduled for 5 p.m. or 5.15 p.m. and have not actually commenced until sometimes a quarter of an hour after that time. I think I can safely say that Service sides are always ready to start at the appointed hour and it is rather hard that they should have to hang around after that time waiting for their opponents to make an appearance.

THERE are some good games down for decision this week. The first is that between the Punjabis and the R.A. Officers. These two teams never fail to provide a tip-top game and I am sure Monday's game will be no exception. I would favour the Punjabis for a win. The H.K.S.R.A. and the Borderers clash on Tuesday and this should also be worth watching.

THE Club should have little difficulty in accounting for the Destroyer Flotilla on Wednesday, and if the Y.M.C. field a full team on Wednesday they should be able to hold the Lincolns, if not win by a narrow margin.

BASEBALL IN JAPAN

Babe Ruth's Team Beats Nippon All-Stars

Tokyo, Nov. 5.
Another capacity crowd of 65,000 cheered to-day as Babe Ruth and his American big league baseball team, making their second start in Japan, said it with homers and downed the Nippon All-Stars 5 to 1 in a well-contested game.

The Americans clouted altogether four four-runners, and this was just their margin of victory over the Japanese, who put up a much harder fight than did the Tokyo club in losing yesterday 17 to 1.

The Babe himself failed to connect for the circuit, but Earl Averill of the Cleveland Indians did it twice and Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees, the 1934 home run king, and Jimmy Foxx, of the Philadelphia Athletics, contributed one four-ply swat apiece. These accounted for all the American tallies, although the visitors obtained six additional hits off the delivery of two Japanese moundmen.

Joe Casanova, of the Athletics, limited the Japanese to three hits. Both outfits were doctored with two errors.

With Connie Mack, veteran pilot of the Athletics, in general charge, the visitors arrived Friday and are scheduled to play 15 more games in Japan before proceeding to Shanghai for one game and to Manila for two. To-day's score:

EMPIRE GAMES ATHLETE

Rampling Undergoes Another Operation

Godfrey Rampling, the great Molecarian athlete who set up a British quarter-mile flat record of 43sec. at the British Empire Games last August, has undergone another operation.

It is understood that the operation has proved effective and doctors say he will be 100 per cent. fit next summer.

If Rampling keeps well he should be at the zenith of his powers at the next Olympic Games, which are to be held at Berlin in 1936.

It will be noted by athletic enthusiasts that Britain's only international engagement abroad next season is with Germany at Cologne. It was at this city that Rampling did such marvellous running in the 400 metres against the German champion, Metzner, in 1931.

Rampling on that form was regarded as England's big hope for the Olympic Games the following season at Los Angeles, but he was taken ill and the operation he experienced prevented him from showing his true form in America.

OBITUARY

DEATH OF OLD HONGKONG RESIDENT

The death occurred at his home, Bucknell Manor, Bicester, on October 1, of Mr. Anthony Babington, a former resident of Hongkong. The late Mr. Babington was one of the older generation of residents, and at the time of his death was 69 years of age. The end came suddenly, from heart failure. He was the youngest son of a distinguished father, Lieut.-Colonel W. Babington, of the 7th Hussars, and came out to the East in his early twenties, serving in Japan for some time before settling down in Hongkong.

Mr. Anthony Babington first arrived in China in the Eighties, and was for some time connected with the National Bank of China, being for several years there after manager of this Bank's branch in Yokohama. About the year 1892 he joined Messrs. Shewan, Tomes and Company, in Hongkong, and retired in 1910, when he went home to England.

The deceased was a very keen polo player, and was also popular in social circles, besides doing a great deal of entertaining himself. He married after leaving China, and settled down in England. He is survived by his widow.

In Hongkong, the late Mr. Babington made his residence at the "Castle" in Calne Road, and it is interesting to note that Babington Path, which is close by, was named after him.

Mr. J. A. E. Bullock

Many in the Colony will recall Mr. J. A. E. Bullock, who was for some years in the Government service, and left here in 1927. News of his death at home, on October 26, has been received in Hongkong.

He had a distinguished career in the army, and then worked at the Colonial Secretariat. Besides gaining the D.C.M. during the service, he was awarded the M.B.E. in the King's Birthday honours in 1919, and was made a Companion of the Imperial Service Order in June 1924.

The late Mr. James Arthur Edward Bullock rose to be Chief Clerk in the Colonial Secretary's Office. He entered the Government service here in 1906 as Accountant of the Kowloon Canton Railway. Three years later, he became Second Clerk to the Colonial Secretary, and after acting as Chief Clerk for some time he was appointed to the senior post in 1914. In 1913, he acted as Secretary of the Sanitary Board and on several occasions was acting Clerk to the Council. He was made a Member of the British Empire Order in 1919.

Mr. Bullock was also for many years a keen Volunteer. He was a talented actor, and will be remembered for some clever work in the cast of "St. Joan" when it was staged by the H.K. Amateur Dramatic Club. He went home in 1927, and settled down to live in England.

Late Mr. S. Brown

A large number of friends paid tribute by their presence at the funeral at Happy Valley yesterday, to Mr. S. Brown, who met a tragic death whilst at work on Wednesday at Shing Mun Valley Dam. The unfortunate man it will be recalled, slipped from the edge of a seventy-foot cliff and suffered such severe injuries that he died shortly after admission to the Kowloon hospital.

The Rev. H. W. Baines conducted the funeral service.

Among those present were Mr. G. P. Gifford Hull, Resident Engineer, of Shing Mun; Messrs. W. Stoker, J. C. Meyer, L. E. Longbottom, R. E. Brown, A. Fisher, (representing the Society of Yorkshiresmen), Messrs. R. Buchanan, A. G. Hills, R. E. Hills, S. Hamer, A. B. Dalziel, J. G. Campbell, H. M. Finlay, G. Duncan, W. H. Wilson, D. H. Hammett, L. A BRIEF HISTORY

KLIM

Nearly twenty five years ago, the Merrell-Soule Co. developed the spray system of milk dehydration, the Company then being forty years old and having been engaged from the beginning in the production of pure foods.

At first, only Powdered Skimmed Milk was made. Careful effort and experimentation, however, led to the development of powdered whole milk. This was put on the market in its finest form under the name of KLIM.

The system comprehends taking pure cow's whole milk of the highest butterfat content, reducing the milk to a powder by the removal of water and then safely packing the powder. There are four steps:

1. Partial dehydration by evaporation in vacuum.
2. Pasteurization in the absence of air.
3. Final dehydration by the Merrell-Soule Spray Process.
4. Packing in tins, a method from which the air is exhausted, which averts oxidation and insures its keeping qualities.

KLIM at the moment of use in the home is the freshest, safest and most uniform milk available. There is no question as to the safety of KLIM. Eminent bacteriologists have made a complete analysis of Klim and found the powder absolutely free from pathogenic organisms.

ASSAULT CHARGE

EVIDENCE GIVEN BY NEW WITNESS YESTERDAY

A new witness, Miss Young Suk-ching, was introduced into the case in which William Gordon Routley, a land bailiff attached to the Public Works Department, is summoned for an alleged assault on a Chinese married woman, Mrs. Lam Yuet-fong, when it was resumed before Mr. J. H. B. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Mr. P. H. Sin appeared for the complainant, while Mr. F. H. Losby, of Messrs. Russ and Company, represented the defendant.

Witness was an official of a Methodist Church at Kowloon City. She had been to Swatow and had returned only last Wednesday. On the day of the alleged assault, Sze-to Hin-Young gave a thanksgiving party and witness was among those present.

While listening to a preacher at the side of the house, witness saw a motor car with a European and a Chinese in it. They got out of the motor car went to a piece of land where the complainant was having a building erected. Witness heard the Chinese say that the building did not conform to the measurements. Something else was said which witness did not hear distinctly. She then saw the defendant pick up a stone and throw it at the complainant. The stone struck the complainant on the leg, and landed somewhere near witness' foot.

Pulled Towards Car.

Defendant then went towards the car, but after going a short distance he turned back and asked the complainant to accompany him to the police station. Complainant appeared reluctant to go with defendant. Witness saw the defendant pull the complainant towards the car while the Chinese with him pushed from behind.

At that time Mrs. Sze-to Hin-Young was with the witness, and Sze-to Hin-Young was standing a little distance away.

After a lengthy cross-examination by Mr. Losby, witness admitted that she did not actually see the defendant throw the stone, but she saw him pick the stone up and raise his arm. Afterwards witness went up to the complainant and saw that her stocking was torn and her leg was bleeding. Witness was afraid of blood and did not do anything to the injury.

In answer to questions put to her by Mr. Sin, witness stated that she had not known that the case was being held in court until yesterday morning. She had never seen Mr. Sin before that morning.

Mr. K. A. Bidmead, A.S.P. (Kowloon), gave evidence in which he stated that he had taken statements from the complainant, and several witnesses including Sze-to Hin-Young, Young Suk-ching and Inspector Cunningham. The statements were not signed by the witnesses as they were only intended to be enquiries.

The case was further adjourned until 2.30 p.m. on Friday, November 16.

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

"You know," Mrs. Cathay said, "husbands would very frequently make fools of themselves were it not for the restraining hand of a wife."

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephoned the newspaper a report of the death of EDWARD SHILLINGBY, private detective, believed to have been killed by "CINCINNATI RED" LAMPSON, gangster. The same night an importer, pretending to be FRANK B. CATHAY of Riverview, wealthy and prominent, is brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. With him is a girl who says she is MARY BRIGGS, hitch-hiker. Both are released.

Morden telephones the facts to his newspaper. Next day the real Cathay calls on DICK KENNEY, city editor of The Blade. Cathay claims his reputation has been injured, and demands damages and a retraction.

DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, hears the story from Kenney's Marlin. Bleeker says, "There's something fishy about this," and sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.

CHAPTER IV

Dan Bleeker, junior partner and publisher of The Blade, turned to Morden, his police reporter. "I'm putting someone else at your desk down at headquarters," he said. "You get busy and chase down every lead you can get on Frank B. Cathay. Dig into Cathay's life with a spade, and dig deep. There'll be plenty there that he won't want to have brought out—there always is. The trouble with men of his type is that they pose as being altogether too perfect. They put up a front that isn't human. When you get back of that front you find a lot of stuff that nobody knows about. You get busy and find out."

"Yes, sir," said Morden. "But don't spring any of it," said Bleeker. "You button it up under your hat and ace that you keep back of your front. You get the information. As you get it, you bring it to me. You'd better make daily reports."

"Suppose they get wise to me?" Morden asked.

"How do you mean?" Bleeker countered.

"Suppose," Morden said, "they find out that I'm making the investigation? They are almost certain to, you know, when I start prowling around in Riverview and—"

Bleeker's words popped out with the explosive force of fire-crackers. "Don't give a damn!" he snapped. "Let 'em find out. What do we care? Tell 'em what you're there for if they ask questions. Remember, young man, that this newspaper is bigger than you are, but by God the newspaper is bigger than he is! He's started a fight. All right, he's going to get a fight. Tell him so! Stand up and look him in the eyes and tell him that."

"Whatever you do, don't be sneaky. Don't get to skulking around corners, listening at key holes, peering through windows. Bust right in. You've got a job—it's a legitimate job. Frank B. Cathay is going to claim that his reputation is worth something and that we've damaged it. All right, the question of what that reputation is worth is a fact to be determined. It depends on a lot of things. You're going to find out what you're doing. You'll find all the home-guard arrayed against you. They'll try to frame you. They'll do everything they can to make things disagreeable for you. Stand up and take it right on the chin, and don't let them stampede you. You must power over 'em. If you get a chance, you tell them that The Blade is in this thing to the finish; that if they frame something on you and get you out of Riverview, there'll be another man to take your place."

"And an' as for Frank B. Cathay is concerned, don't make any bones about it. Attend meetings of his luncheon club. Mingle around in the city. Smile at him. Be cordial to him. But never forget the one fact that you're there to blast his reputation wide open. Do you understand?"

Morden nodded.

"You're engaged in a fight," Dan Bleeker said, "and there's a dignity about a fighter, as long as he stands on his two feet and fights. Remember this about The Blade, young man. It doesn't snoop—it fights. You're going into Riverview as the representative of The Blade. You're going to be fighting one of the most powerful men in the city. You'll find all the home-guard arrayed against you. They'll try to frame you. They'll do everything they can to make things disagreeable for you. Stand up and take it right on the chin, and don't let them stampede you. You must power over 'em. If you get a chance, you tell them that The Blade is in this thing to the finish; that if they frame something on you and get you out of Riverview, there'll be another man to take your place."

"And an' as for Frank B. Cathay is concerned, don't make any bones about it. Attend meetings of his luncheon club. Mingle around in the city. Smile at him. Be cordial to him. But never forget the one fact that you're there to blast his reputation wide open. Do you understand?"

Morden nodded.

"You're engaged in a fight," Dan Bleeker said, "and there's a dignity about a fighter, as long as he stands on his two feet and fights. Remember this about The Blade, young man. It doesn't snoop—it fights. You're going into Riverview as the representative of The Blade. You're going to be fighting one of the most powerful men in the city. You'll find all the home-guard arrayed against you. They'll try to frame you. They'll do everything they can to make things disagreeable for you. Stand up and take it right on the chin, and don't let them stampede you. You must power over 'em. If you get a chance, you tell them that The Blade is in this thing to the finish; that if they frame something on you and get you out of Riverview, there'll be another man to take your place."

Morden nodded.

"Yes, sir," said Morden.

"Can you do it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Get started, then."

Ethel West, Dan Bleeker's secretary, was long-legged and languid. Her face held an expression of perpetual weariness which seemed due not so much to a disapproval of her environment as to the people who filled it.

She surveyed the woman before her with glassy eyes that stared in expressionless appraisal from behind spectacles.

"Your name," she said, "is Mrs. Frank B. Cathay. You're from Riverview and you wish to see Mr. Bleeker but won't explain the nature of your business. Is that right?"

The woman was expensively gowned and well kept; her manner regal, yet worried. Her face was nestled against the collar of a fur coat, a collar which had been carefully selected to set off the delicate oval of the face, when the face was held against the collar at just such an angle.

"Yes," she said. "Will you be so good as to tell him that I am here?"

Ethel West moved with slow deliberation.

"You'll have to wait," she said.

Mrs. Cathay bit at her under lip. Then her face once more relaxed into perfect repose.

"Thank you," she said in a voice that was neither cordial nor grateful. She remained standing.

Ethel West strode into Dan Bleeker's private office.

"Mrs. Cathay is out there," she said.

Bleeker looked up at her with a swift frown.

"Alone?"

"Yes."

"What does she want?"

"She won't tell me."

"She's about 30. She has lots of money and she's spent a lot of it on her appearance. She's got one of those schoolgirl complexions. She hardly ever moves her facial muscles. Her eyes are nervous. She's trying to make a good impression. She's wearing a fur coat with a big collar; she looks better in it when she's standing up. She started to sit down and then changed her mind. She thinks perhaps you might come out to see her. Instead of letting her come in to see you. She's standing up so she can't make an impression."

"No, she's got a perfect figure and the coat displays it to advantage."

"Show her in," said Bleeker.

Ethel West moved unhurriedly to the door which opened into the outer office.

"You may come in, Mrs. Cathay," she said.

Mrs. Cathay entered the office with short, quick steps. From the moment she reached a point from which she could command a view of Dan Bleeker's desk, her eyes were wide, showing to advantage the long lashes. Her head was held slightly to one side against the big collar of the coat. Her lips were curved in a perfectly arched smile.

"Mr. Bleeker!" she exclaimed. "It was so nice of you to see me and so nice of you to see me so promptly. I know what a busy man you are."

Dan Bleeker didn't get up. Ethel West pulled the door shut behind her as she returned to the outer office. She indicated that there had been some unnecessary emphasis in connection with its closing.

"Sit down, Mrs. Cathay," said Dan Bleeker.

"I wanted to see you about my husband," Mrs. Cathay said.

"Yes, of course."

"Oh, did you know I was coming?"

"No, but I naturally assumed that was what you wanted to see me about. When my secretary said you were in the office."

She squirmed about in the chair, settling herself with a slight gesture of the shoulders, a quick twist of her head. Her eyes, a deep hazel, were smiling now. Her voice held a low note, suggestive of intimacy.

"You know, Mr. Bleeker," she said, "husbands would very frequently make fools of themselves were it not for the restraining hand of a wife."

Bleeker surveyed the woman with acid eyes.

"I'm a bachelor, myself," he said. She gave a low nervous laugh.

"And," went on Bleeker, "you can cut out the preliminaries and get down to business."

"My husband," she said, "is a man of very strong will."

She paused and Bleeker said nothing.

"At times he's quite impulsive. That is, in his rages, you know. He reaches some decision on the spur of the moment when he's real mad about something and then he's too proud and obstinate to back up."

She seemed to struggle into the fur coat with a quick squirming motion. Her head, tilted to one side, rested against the high fur collar. Her eyes, as well as her lips, smiled intimately at Dan Bleeker.

Mrs. Cathay makes an unusual request in the next instalment.

"The House of Rothschild," George Arliss' first vehicle under his new starring contract with 20th Century Pictures, showing to-day at the King's Theatre, was considered so important by producers Joseph M. Schenck and Harry F. Zannuck that all other production activities at the studio were held up during its filming. This is the first time in the Hollywood history that such a tribute has been paid to a picture by a major producing company. The film, which traces the rise of the famous European banking family from obscurity in Frankfurt, Germany, to the position of international prominence it had gained at the end of the Napoleonic wars, presents Mr. Arliss in two roles, first as Mayer Anselm Rothschild, the father of the five brothers who made the family name celebrated, and later as Nathan Rothschild, the brother who founded the English branch of the family. Featured in support of Arliss are Boris Karloff, the wicked Baron Ledwitsch, Lorelei Young who plays Nathan's daughter, Julie, and Robert Young as Fitzroy, her fiance and aide to the Duke of Wellington. Others in the impressive cast, which includes more than seventy speaking parts, are G. Aubrey Smith, Helen Westley, Arthur Byron, Florence Arliss, Murray Kin-nell, Reginald Owen, Alan Mowbray, Gilbert Emery and Georges Renavent. Alfred Werker directed the picture for United Artists, released, assisted by Maude T. Howell, from a screen play written by Nunnally Johnson and based on a play by George Herbert Wentley.

"Fugitive Lovers," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer melodrama coming to the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday brings an entirely new kind of picture to the screen. Practically all the action of the exciting story takes place on a great Greyhound bus bound west from New York City to Hollywood. As the scenes are authentic, the bus with Madge Evans, Ted Healy and his "stooges," Nat Pendleton, G. Henry Gordon, Ruth Selwyn and dozens of other characters aboard, speeds past a penitentiary on its first night out, Porter, Montgomery, in the role of Porter, stages a daring prison break. As the rifle and machine gun shots halt the bus, Montgomery manages to climb aboard, up to the luggage rack, where he hides shifts into civilian clothes, and later enters the bus as a passenger. While the man-hunt for Porter is on, the daring escaped convict falls in love with Letty. Then "Lovers" played by Nat Pendleton, discovers Porter's identity and conspires to aid in his capture. The police swoop on with quickening tempo and a smashing climax to a tremendous finish.

"Chained," to-morrow's attraction at the Queen's Theatre, Joan Crawford and Clark Gable are co-starring in a story especially written for them by Edgar Selwyn, noted writer, director and producer. They are cast in the kind of roles which each has made famous—Joan as a vivid young lady of Manhattan and Clark as a young American rancher. With Otto Kruger as the "other man," a rich gentlemanly, middle-aged New Yorker, also in love with Joan, the story makes the new trend of fast-moving locale, the background of the action is as swift changing as the drama itself. Beginning with a swiftly shifts to Manhattan, then to a luxurious South American, and from a great ranch there back to New York, and thus to a smart mountain resort in the North. The story concerns a beautiful girl who deliberately breaks a man's heart in order to save another to whom she is indebted from suffering. She bravely faces the consequences, with the surprise ending a happy one for all three. Clarence Brown, M.G.M.'s ace director, who was behind the megaphone of "Chained," also directed Joan in her last picture, "Eddie McKee." Armed with a powerful story and a remarkable cast, he has woven "Chained" into a brilliant photoplay of humour and drama. Stuart Erwin plays the part of Gable's friend, whose wise observations add flavour to the rapidly paced story. Una O'Connor and Marjorie Gateson are equally well cast as Joan's companion and Kruger's wife respectively. Also featured are Ralph Bushman, John Lee Mahin, well known scenarist, adapted, Selwyn's story to the screen. George Folsey, ace cameraman, was responsible for the photography. Hunt Stromberg was the producer.

"Aunt Sally," which has its final showing to-day at the Queen's, is a fine Cicely Courtneidge comedy, with song, music, and dance played against a spectacular modern night club setting. The story is a fitting vehicle for the brilliant and versatile Cicely Courtneidge as an embryo artist trying to break into fame as a cabaret artist. She is abducted by gangsters, escapes, and finishes by being made out a dangerous gangster, during the performance of a "Cody" Apache Dance. Pretty chorines put on a number of tuneful melodies, all made familiar to the public by the medium of radio and gramophone. Directed by Tim Whelan, picture has a number of songs played including Sam Harts, P. Clare, Billy Milton and H. Power, who dovelots into the "Every kind of recipe for love" making it to be found in "Aunt Sally" and comedy and song in a spicy whole that all will

CONTRACT BRIDGE

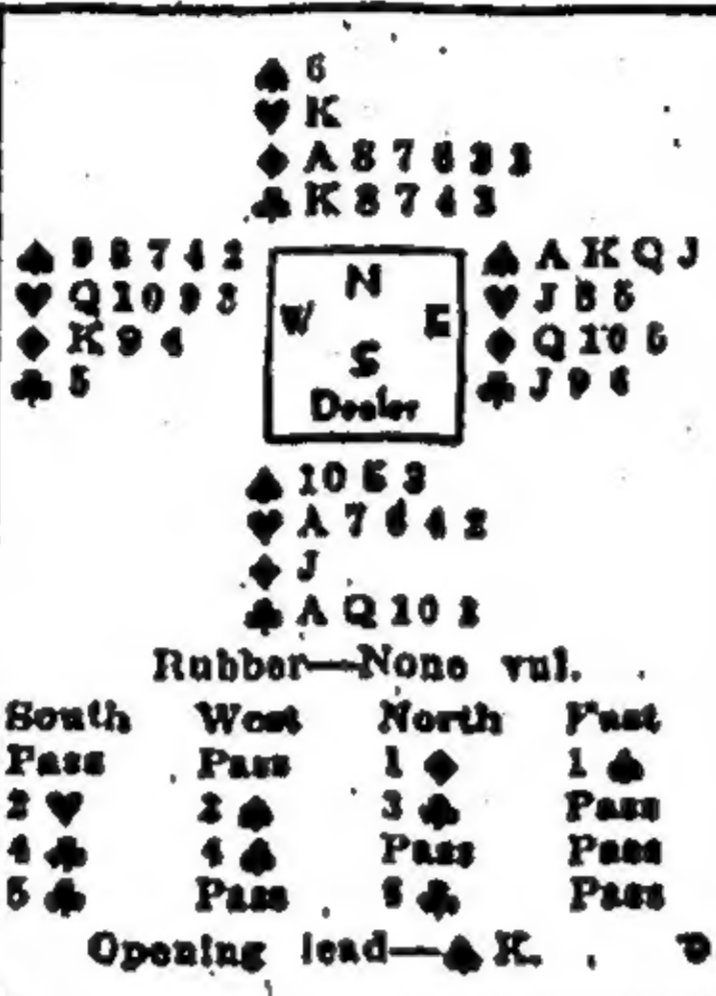

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

By W. E. McKenney

At auction bridge sacrifice bidding played an important part. Some players still think that sacrifice bidding has a place in contract. I do not think so.

It is all right if you can figure out a safe sacrifice, but you ask any money contract player and he will tell you that, when the opponents are getting the tickets, you had better let them have their game and not try to sacrifice. They probably will win the game and all the thanks you get for your sacrifice bidding is to lose an extra large rubber.

At first glance, to-day's hand looks as if East and West have a good sacrifice against six clubs. You would say that all they would lose is two hearts, a diamond, and a club—down three, less a hundred honours. But how the hand can go wrong!

Singleton diamond opening, the ace wins, the king of hearts cashed, a diamond ruffed, the ace of hearts cashed, small heart returned and ruffed, a diamond returned and ruffed and a club cashed, down six tricks.

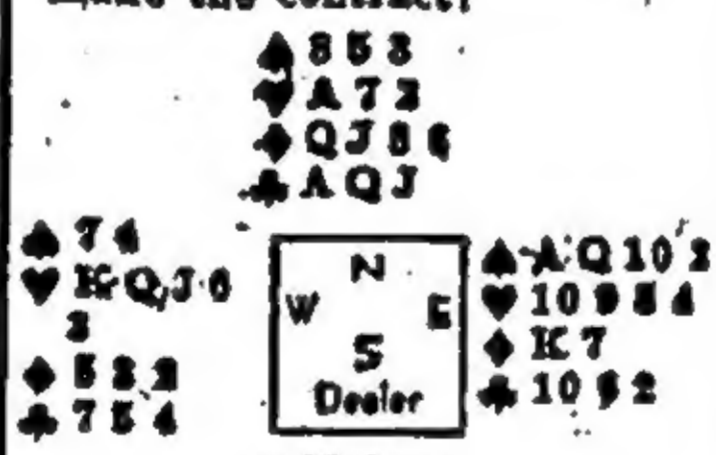

Now your opponents do not have to work hard to win the rubber. They practically could win it on that hand.

Six clubs can be made on a straight cross-ruff. With a spade opening East wins with the king, and returns the six of clubs, which is won in dummy with the eight spot. The ace of diamonds is played and a small diamond returned and ruffed.

A small heart is played and won with the king, a diamond ruffed with the ace of clubs, the queen of clubs cashed, a spade ruffed, the jack of clubs picked up by the king of clubs and the diamonds are all good.

Today's Contract Problem

In a recent championship tournament, this hand was played at four spades by South, admittedly a bad contract. The king of hearts was led. If you were playing the hand as declarer, could you make the contract?

Solution in next issue.

NEW EMPRESS RECORD

The Canadian Pacific Sagahp, the Empress of Japan, largest and fastest liner on the Pacific, which arrived in Hongkong yesterday, broke her own westbound record between Honolulu and Yokohama by three hours.

LAUNCHING BY RADIO

PRINCE ONLY NEEDS PRESS BUTTON

London, Nov. 9.

The Duke of Gloucester while attending a concert at Brisbane on December 7 will launch the new Orient liner, Orion, now building at Barrow in Furness.

By pressing a button an electrical impulse will be sent by landline to Sydney and thence by radio and telephone trunk lines to Barrow where it will close the power circuit and release the ship which will immediately glide into water.

The Orion will be the first ship of the British mercantile marine to be launched by wireless telephone. The new liner will be approximately 24,000 tons gross. She contains gas light chambers for the transport of chilled meat from Australia.—British Wireless.

LORD MAYOR'S SHOW

London, Nov. 9.

Despite an almost continuous rain, large crowds gathered in the streets here to witness the Lord Mayor's show.

The central feature of the procession which accompanied the new Lord Mayor, Sir Stephen Killik, in his famous coach, attended by postillions and footmen to the Court of Justice where the oath was taken, was the pageant of London and Londoners based Dickens.—British Wireless.

BRITISH STOCK BOOM

London, Nov. 9.

Further advances in the price of British Government securities took place on the Stock Exchange. War Loan 3½ per cent. closed at 105½, Consols 2½ per cent. at 88½, the highest since 1909. Conversion 3½ rose to 107.11/16, a new high record, and local loans "Threens" were quoted at 96.5/8.—British Wireless.

"THE HOUSE OF ROTHSCHILD"

MAGNIFICENT FILM ON SHOW

At the King's Theatre last night, in the presence of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel, a crowded house witnessed the first screening of the exceptionally fine production "The House of Rothschild."

George Arliss has such a number of triumphs to his credit, that a high standard of work is naturally expected, but it can be truthfully said that in this remarkable film, he has eclipsed all of his previous successes. His impersonation of the founder of the "House of Rothschild" in the first part of the film is convincingly real, while the subsequent role enacted by him as Nathan, the master mind of the Rothschild Brothers, grips the imagination of his audience in every word and gesture.

TREASURY BILLS

London, Nov. 9.

The total amount applied for in tenders for £35,000,000 Treasury bills was £38,265,000. The amount allotted in bills at three months was £32,000,000. The average rate per cent. was 5/2.55d, as compared with 5/7.66d last week.—British Wireless.

MINISTER RETIRING

Tokyo, Nov. 10.

The Japanese press reports that Mr. Matsudaira is going to Tokyo before Christmas with the intention of not returning to London. The former Foreign Minister, Mr. Yoshizawa, is mentioned as his possible successor.—Reuter.
